

County remains virtually paralyzed

Area rescue operations continue

Helicopter rescue missions were continuing today in an attempt to assist rural residents isolated by drifting snow and sub-zero temperatures.

Ohio Army National Guard Personnel, Fayette County sheriff's deputies and other workers conducted an estimated 300 rescue missions over the weekend.

The missions included evacuation of rural residents who have been left without food, fuel and proper medical attention since a blizzard paralyzed the county early Friday.

"We're dealing with emergency cases first, those persons without medicine, food and fuel," said Fayette County Donald L. Thompson.

Many of the rescue and evacuation missions have been completed by Ohio National Guard helicopters which have been flying almost continuously since Friday night. Heavy motorized equipment is being used to reach persons in other remote areas.

"It's a great feeling to jump out of that helicopter and carry food to people," said Ed Summers, a member of the local Ohio Army National Guard unit. "It really makes you feel like you're doing something worthwhile."

Only one serious medical case has been reported by Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

A three-week-old infant and his parents were evacuated by helicopter Saturday from a residence in the Hedge Run Subdivision, off Wentz Road in northern Fayette County. The family had been without heat.

Sheriff Thompson said the infant developed severe respiratory problems en route to Washington C.H.

After the helicopter landed at the Washington Square Shopping Center, the infant was placed in a sheriff's cruiser and rushed to the emergency room at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

The infant was revived and was released Sunday following treatment.

An Ohio National Guard helicopter also evacuated a victim who was involved in a traffic accident near Greenfield on Ohio 28. Local authorities said the victim suffered a possible spleen injury.

Nearly all other medical attention cases have involved frostbite. A small emergency medical station has been established at the Ohio National Guard armory on S. Fayette Street. Serious cases are being transferred to Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Local distributors have noted shortages in fuel oil, kerosene and other petroleum products. Ralston M. Smith, Fayette County Disaster Services Agency director, said the state is allocating additional supplies. It has been estimated that 10,000 rural residents depend on fuel oil to heat their homes.

While helicopters have dropped or taken food to scattered areas, at least two bulk food deliveries were made over the weekend.

More than 1,000 pounds of food were delivered by a 14-ton armored personnel carrier to a Bookwalter grocery store to resupply families in northwestern Fayette County. A large food supply was delivered to the Good Hope community in southern Fayette County Sunday.

Meanwhile, road conditions have not improved greatly.

Area road and highway department crews have been hampered by strong winds in efforts to clear snow-clogged thoroughfares. Workmen have been plagued by the winds which continue to cause drifts, in some cases six to seven feet high.

Sheriff's deputies reported today that virtually all county roads remain closed. Officers said U.S. 22, both east and west of Washington C.H., is the only highway open to traffic. They said U.S. 35, between Washington C.H. and Interstate 71, was open to emergency traffic only Monday. The roadway was free of drifts but was covered with ice.

"Our present (road) equipment is ineffective," Sheriff Thompson said. The county sheriff arranged for two snow blowers from the Port Columbus Airport to be delivered to assist county road crews. The machinery was expected to be delivered here today by the Ohio Department of Transportation.

Ohio National Guard personnel have been assisting area road crews in attempts to remove an estimated 200 abandoned vehicles from roadways. The guardsmen are operating five-ton wreckers and other heavy equipment. Bulldozers from neighboring counties are also assisting in road clearing operations.

Sheriff Thompson said he estimates that 200 persons were stranded in the county over the weekend and were staying in various homes throughout the county. Many local residents who commute to other cities were stranded outside the county over the weekend.

Ohio National Guard personnel continued water delivery operations to Washington C.H. residents who have experienced frozen service lines.

Between 100 and 200 displaced and stranded persons used facilities at the Ohio National Guard armory over the weekend. Many of them had been evacuated from area homes.

Mother, three children evacuated

By PHIL LEWIS

Early Sunday morning, Mrs. Anna Lee Davis' prayers were answered.

An Ohio Army National Guard helicopter landed near her snowbound home on Old Charleston Road in southern Fayette County Road and evacuated Mrs. Davis and her three small children.

"I wasn't expecting anybody," she said from the warmth of the Ohio National Guard Armory on S. Fayette Street. "Truthfully, I was praying that someone would come."

Mrs. Davis' car wouldn't start and even if it did she wouldn't have been able to go anywhere after the blizzard hit early Friday morning.

She was running low on heating fuel and her milk supply for Hollie Ann, 1, Rodney, 2, and Margaret, 4, was nearly exhausted. To make matters worse, Mrs. Davis did not have a telephone to call for assistance.

In fact, the only way the Davis' were found was through her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wagner. They called the Fayette County Sheriff's Department to ask for assistance in reaching their daughter and grandchildren. Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson notified the Ohio Army National Guard and a helicopter was dispatched.

The whole Davis situation had Sheriff Thompson wondering how many more families were stranded in remote areas and could not get a call out for help.

The Wagners dropped food off at their daughter's home Thursday. But following Friday's blizzard, the Wagners were snowed in at their home on the Pavey Road.

"The wind blew so hard it blew the plastic off the windows," Mrs. Davis said, thinking back to the blizzard.

When her car wouldn't start after the storm, she began to worry. Hollie had a slight fever and Rodney has an allergy condition that requires medication. But, there was no way to call for help.

After the Ohio National Guard helicopter landed near her home off U.S. 62-S, guardsmen led her and her three, bundled children aboard.

"I was in such a daze, I didn't even know it was cold," she said.

She added that her children were well behaved on the helicopter trip to the landing area at the Washington Square Shopping Center parking lot and didn't appear to be scared. As for Mrs. Davis, "I loved it."

From the helicopter the Davis family was transported to Fayette County Memorial Hospital where the three children were checked by doctors. Then, they were taken to the armory with the rest of the victims stranded by the blizzard or taken from their homes. "I feel like I'm in a daydream," Mrs. Davis said after being interviewed by network news media and area television reporters.

JUDY GODEK was also at the armory Sunday and she ran to embrace her husband after he arrived from Dayton.

She was driving to McArthur in Southern Ohio for a court appearance Friday morning when the blizzard hit. Six friends were in the car when it became stranded on U.S. 35 between Washington C.H. and Chillicothe.

Commissioners approve resolution

County remains under emergency declaration

Fayette County remained under a state of emergency Monday as efforts continued to assist persons victimized by violent weather conditions.

The resolution declaring an emergency in the county was approved late Saturday night by members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

The document, which was drafted by Fayette County prosecuting attorney James A. Kiger, was delivered for signing by an Ohio Army National Guard helicopter to commission chairman Ray D. Warner at his home on Fairview Road in Wayne Township and to commissioner Robert Mace at his residence on Ohio 38 near Bloomingburg.

Area law enforcement agencies, the disaster services agency and other county officials said the declaration was drafted following a meeting Saturday night.

The declaration authorizes local agencies "to implement all services necessary and to take any and all action necessary to save, protect and preserve the life and property of all citizens of this county." The document further stated that "an emergency exists in the county and many citizens will be subject to losses of property and possibly their lives unless immediate remedial action is taken."

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said the declaration provides local agencies "the authority to proceed with things we couldn't do under normal circumstances."

Meanwhile, a centralized communications center for local rescue workers has been established at the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Four additional emergency telephone lines were installed at the sheriff's office by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. workers late Saturday night.

The additional phone lines are helping to relieve a heavy influx of calls received by officers. Ohio Army National Guard personnel are assisting regular and auxiliary sheriff's deputies in answering calls.

Persons requiring assistance should call 335-3333.

Educators eye double use of Ohio schools

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio educators called for "double use of schools buildings" heated by fuels other than natural gas during the weather-related natural gas crisis which has forced more than 50 per cent of the state's public schools to close.

The proposal was one of several endorsed by representatives of educational groups, including superintendents, and state officials during a meeting over the weekend. The session was requested by Martin W. Essex, state superintendent of public instruction.

Double use of school buildings not shutdown by the natural gas shortage would allow elementary schools to conduct two four-hour sessions, Essex said.

The state superintendent also suggested that facilities other than school buildings be considered for classes. He named church halls, hospitals, banks and colleges as possible sites.

Essex said nearly 30 per cent of Ohio's school districts could remain open, either because sufficient gas is available or through use of alternate fuels.

But for those forced to close, he said, school administrators would encourage teachers to make long range assignments and consider permitting students to keep their textbooks during shutdowns.

Media lessons and learning plans will be published in a Columbus newspaper beginning this week.

Supplier to maintain cutback

Natural gas problems remain, despite rise in temperatures

By The Associated Press
Temperatures were to rise to the comparatively balmy 20s today, but Ohio could only expect the problems caused by natural gas shortages to remain at the status quo.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., a major gas supplier to utilities in Ohio and six other states, said it was maintaining its cutback in allotments to over 80 gas companies in its service area.

That means that three major Ohio firms supplied by the transmission company—Columbia Gas of Ohio,

Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and Dayton Power & Light Co.—must continue to hold back supplies to all but residential and other high priority customers. That policy has shut down many industries, schools and businesses, idling an estimated one million workers, 25 per cent of the state's work force.

Columbia Transmission—which serves Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, New York and the District of Columbia—said it was acting in accordance with Federal Power Commission regulations and directives designed to deal with gas emergencies. The supplier cut its daily allotments to customers by about 20 per cent last Thursday, the company indicated. In a news release, a spokesman said the persistent cold weather has cut deeply into stocks of underground storage gas and has sharply reduced the amount of gas it can deliver from storage each day.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Columbia Gas, the state's largest gas utility, said the situation was holding steady.

"Pressures are holding solid throughout the state," spokesman William Chaddock said. Columbia Gas serves 56 counties with more than one million customers.

Reports from the three other large gas companies in Ohio—DP&L, CG&E, and East Ohio Gas Co.—were much the same.

"I guess our guys are keeping up with it (demand)," said East Ohio spokesman David Talbott.

A spokesman for DP&L said that company would abide by the Columbia

Transmission directive and continue on its present curtailment schedule.

In another development, Columbia Transmission was investigating the possibility of receiving a shipment of liquefied natural gas that has been located in Alaska. A spokesman said the firm has asked Secretary of the Treasury Michael Blumenthal to waive regulations requiring the use of U.S.-registered tankers for transporting the gas between two American ports—from Kenai, Alaska to Everett, Mass. "We found there were no U.S. ships available to bring the gas through the Panama Canal to the eastern seaboard," said spokesman Bruce Quayle.

Even if the waiver is granted, another Columbia spokesman said the gas would not be available until the winter heating season is nearly over.

State administrators credited the closing of industries and nonessential businesses throughout the state over the weekend and cooperation by residential users in turning their thermostats down for preventing a disaster.

The News In Brief

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Two killers sentenced to the electric chair want to be married in Florida's first Death Row wedding, not for themselves but for the sake of their child.

Jessie Tafero says he is prepared for the worst — the possibility that his and Sonia Jacobs' appeals will fail and they will be executed. That would orphan their daughter, Christina, born out of wedlock 21 months ago.

"Sonia and I are applying now to be married. Here, just about anywhere we can, so our marital status will be completely legitimized for everybody's questions ... We have a child," Tafero said in a copyright story in today's St. Petersburg Times.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The defense indicated it will continue to attempt to convince a jury that Hustler magazine does not offend local community standards as the trial of publisher Larry Flynt and three others opens its third week today.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge Williams S. Morrissey Friday denied a motion to dismiss charges of pandering obscenity and engaging in organized crime against Flynt and three employees. He also ruled that six similar magazines cannot be entered as evidence in the case.

The motion to dismiss charges came after the prosecution had rested its case against Flynt, his wife Althea Leasure, his brother Jimmy and Al Van Schaik.

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Bataglia, general manager of Latonia for the past five years, will become director of operations at River Downs in Cincinnati effective Tuesday.

Storm victim

Godek and her friends were forced to look for shelter. They kept warm, thanks to semi tractor-trailer truck drivers, who welcomed them into their warm cabs.

The last she saw of her car, it was covered to the roof with snow.

Mrs. Godek and her friends were transferred to the armory at 2 p.m. Friday. They stayed there for nearly 48 hours. "Everybody has been so nice," she said.

Sunday afternoon, her husband completed his journey from Dayton to pick her up. He was forced to drive to U.S. 68 and then up U.S. 22 to reach Washington C.H.

While Mrs. Godek and her husband were leaving the armory for the return trip to Dayton, a Dayton truck driver was arriving. He was suffering from frostbitten feet.

The trucker had been at the National Guard since Friday, but on Sunday he decided to see if his truck, abandoned along U.S. 22, would start. The long walk in the snow almost resulted in crippling injuries.

A pan of water was drawn to thaw out his feet. Although the injuries were not believed serious, he was transported by ambulance to Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Frostbite, with the possible exception of loneliness experienced by persons far from loved ones, was the most common malady suffered by the estimated 200 to 300 persons seeking emergency shelter at the armory over the weekend.

Ohio solons to eye fuel crisis cause

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's lawmakers are sure to launch an investigation soon into causes of the state's unprecedented winter fuel crisis and, inevitably, try to fix blame.

The Senate and House are scheduled to convene Tuesday to continue their regular 1976 session which recessed Jan. 12 for the presidential inauguration.

Since that time, they have been in special session, on call if Gov. James A. Rhodes needed emergency legislation to deal with the crisis. He requested none.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocashek, D-27 Akron, along with some Republicans, already have called for committees to investigate the fuel shortage.

With the severe winter weather a threat to normal operations of the legislature, as it has been to almost everything else in Ohio, leaders plan this week to get committee hearings under way for the first time since the legislature convened Jan. 3.

Storm rakes Buffalo, N.Y.

Fuel cutback orders keep workers home

By The Associated Press
Strict orders for cutbacks in fuel consumption kept millions of workers and students at home today in the frigid East and Midwest but also helped guarantee that their homes will stay warm.

The Federal Power Commission said that because at least 11 states made plans to close businesses and schools to save fuel, and four major natural gas pipeline systems reported slight increases in supplies Sunday, the threat of interrupted gas service to homes had receded.

But more than 1.5 million people were out of work — one million of these in Ohio — and thousands of schools were closed because of the strain on fuel supplies, especially natural gas, during this winter's wicked cold spells.

In Buffalo, N.Y., hardest-hit city in the nation, at least eight persons perished in the blizzard there, including seven found dead in their cars.

Small funeral rites held for comic Freddie Prinze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As co-star Jack Albertson and best friend Tony Orlando composed eulogies for Freddie Prinze's funeral service today, the coroner revealed that the 22-year-old comic had no chance for survival from the moment he shot himself in the head.

A small funeral service was scheduled for 12:30 p.m. PST today at the Old North Church at Forest Lawn in Hollywood Hills for the young star of NBC's "Chico and the Man."

A spokesman for Forest Lawn said pallbearers would include songwriter Paul Williams and business agent Marvin Snyder. A Prinze spokesman said entertainer Bob Hope would be an honorary pallbearer.

Prinze, who left a note saying he couldn't "take it anymore," died Saturday afternoon, 33 hours after he pulled a .32 caliber automatic from his apartment sofa and fired a bullet through his temple as Snyder watched. He had just hung up the telephone from speaking to his estranged wife, Kathy, mother of his 10-month-old son Freddie Jr.

As doctors at UCLA Medical Center performed surgery and used life-sustaining equipment in a futile effort to save him, the hospital was flooded with telephone calls from fans. The family and a few close friends, including singer Orlando, held a vigil.

Doctors at first refused to comment on Prinze's chances for survival, but the Los Angeles County coroner's office said Sunday that his injuries were so serious that he could not have lived.

"All that charm, all that love, all that marvelous talent and all that niceness," said James Komack,

Woman ordained

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Doris Mote—too late to be a pathfinder but still very much a pioneer in her church—on Saturday became the second woman to be ordained as an Episcopal priest in Ohio.

There was no reply when the Rt. Rev. John Krumm asked the congregation at Christ Episcopal Church if there were any who opposed the ordination of the 38-year-old mother of three children.

Scheduled in the House is formal introduction of the governor's $14.5 billion operating budget for the two-year state bookkeeping period beginning next July 1.

The voluminous document, unveiled by the administration last Tuesday, eventually will be picked apart by majority Democrats who have had little time to study it so far.

Up about $2.4 billion from the current biennium, Rhodes said the budget provides modest increases in most state programs but requires no new or increased taxes.

Ocashek, who has been working with the Republican governor on the energy problem daily for more than a week, said various reports from industry officials gave him "an education."

He doesn't like some of the things he has learned, he said.

Specifically, the Senate leader wants to know why Columbia Gas of Ohio, Inc. purchased 13 billion cubic feet of Fifty-nine persons were arraigned Sunday on charges connected with looting stores during the paralyzing storm.

A storm brought snow and sleet to the South, from central Texas to Georgia, Sunday and early today. Heavy snow fell in Texas and Louisiana — four inches at Gainesville and Mineral Wells, Tex. — and lesser amounts were recorded in Selma, Ala., Plains, Ga., and parts of northwest Florida.

In most areas, the forecast called for at least two more days of very cold weather, perhaps a few degrees warmer than during the weekend.

Both houses of Congress scheduled sessions today on an emergency natural gas bill proposed by the White House. The bill would enable President Carter to order gas transferred from one pipeline company to another to get it to the most desperate areas.

Senate leaders said a vote was possible today and likely by Tuesday unless attempts to amend the bill slow producer and creator of the "Chico" series. "He couldn't do that offstage. Offstage the world was still uncomfortable for him."

Prinze was faced with the breakup of his marriage, the problems of trying to free himself from a contract with a former manager who signed him as a teen-ager and the concern over an impending trial on charges of driving under the influence of drugs.

Johnny Carson, host of the "Tonight" show where Komack spotted Prinze, said the young actor "had tremendous talent. The sadness is always magnified when someone so young finds the pressures intolerable."

Department eyes Ohio joblessness

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state development department said Sunday an estimated one million persons, one quarter of Ohio's labor force, would be out of work this week because of the weather-related energy crisis.

Spokesman Ken Drum said the projection comes from analysis of figures on industrial and commercial firms ordered to close to conserve natural gas.

He said department analysis shows 400,000 of 1.3 million industrial workers are off the job, temporarily laid off when major gas utilities directed industries served by them to operate only at maintenance levels.

Drum said an additional 150,000 employees of educational institutions are projected to be out of work because of the combination of subzero temperatures and natural gas shortages.

The remaining 450,000 workers in the total estimate were projected after gas utilities ordered small commercial businesses using natural gas to curtail operations. Drum said retail stores, restaurants and other commercial enterprises are included in that category.

emergency gas the last heating season, but only 300 million cubic feet so far this winter.

Columbia officials previously blamed the legislature for enacting a new law last summer they said restricted their ability to make emergency fuel purchases. The bill prohibited utilities from requiring residential users to share the cost of emergency fuel purchases with industrial users. Sponsors denied the charge.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, said he would like to see a bipartisan committee conduct an investigation that would also include acts by the state government which could have contributed to the crisis.

Asked if he would include the Ohio Energy Resources and Development Agency, criticized for not having a complete inventory of Ohio's energy supplies, Kurfess replied "you're darn right."

it down. The House Commerce Committee planned to work on the bill today so it could be ready for floor action Tuesday.

Carter traveled Sunday to Pittsburgh to tour a turbine plant that was partially shut down by the cold and the fuel shortage.

"I don't think there's any doubt that there is a natural gas shortage in this area," the President said. "But nationwide, if we could distribute the gas to exactly where it was needed, we would probably have enough."

Pennsylvania was among the states in which distributors had said they might have to cut off gas delivery to residences because of dwindling supplies and failing pressure.

They already had stopped servicing hundreds of businesses, and about 90,000 workers have been laid off. All state schools have been closed since Thursday, keeping more than 2.6 million pupils at home.

But a Civil Defense spokesman said Sunday night in Harrisburg that the residential cutoff no longer was imminent.

Gov. Milton Shapp scheduled a meeting for today to consider reopening the schools Tuesday.

In New York, which like Pennsylvania has been declared eligible for federal disaster relief, at least half a million schoolchildren will be off all this week. Gov. Hugh Carey closed every school heated by natural gas — 1,309 public schools and an unknown number of private schools.

A spokesman for the State Public Service Commission said that temperatures slightly above predictions had eased the supply shortage, but about 200,000 upstate New Yorkers were out of work because of an almost total ban imposed by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. on the use of natural gas for industry.

The utility said the restrictions might last all week.

Activity in Buffalo, N.Y., was still far from normal. National Guardsmen, city workers and private contractors worked all day to clear snow from streets and highways, but one official said Sunday night, "We're about to lose the battle."

All but emergency travel has been banned in the city of 1.4 million; hundreds of cars, abandoned in snowdrifts, hindered the movement of emergency and supply vehicles.

Officials feared that they might find more bodies in cars, in addition to the seven already found in the Buffalo area since a blizzard struck Friday.

More blowing, drifting snow was predicted for Buffalo today. More than 157 inches of snow has fallen already this winter. In a normal winter 44 inches might be expected by now.

On a lighter note, three reindeer from the Buffalo Zoo took advantage of giant drifts Sunday to spring over their fence for an hour or so. All were sighted within a mile and brought in after being tranquilized.

In New Jersey, energy-saving procedures went into effect today under an emergency decree from Gov. Brendan Byrne. Stores, bars, restaurants, offices and recreation facilities were ordered onto a 40-hour week until further notice — regardless of what fuel is used.

Industrial use of natural gas was cut off last week in New Jersey, and Public Utility Commission president Joel Jacobsen said Sunday that business curtailments might raise the number of idled workers to 750,000.

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll scheduled a meeting for today to outline the implementation of a four-day week for "nonessential" state employees. But in West Virginia, Gov. Jay Rockefeller said state employees would remain on the job to help solve energy problems.

Indiana officials decided to ask President Carter to make their state eligible for aid. Govs. James Rhodes of Ohio and James Thompson of Illinois asked Carter to call a governors' meeting aimed at redirecting the nation's energy priorities toward heavier use of coal.

Ohio has reported one million workers — 25 per cent of the work force — laid off because of the weather and its consequences.

The Mississippi River was still virtually barren of traffic because of ice blockades, according to the Coast Guard office in St. Louis.

Spot shortages of fuels other than natural gas cropped up all weekend, sometimes due to delivery problems. North Carolina officials said so many businesses had switched from natural gas to fuel oil that the oil was in short supply.

Deaths, Funerals

Mrs. Clarence F. Everhart

Mrs. Anna Pearl McKee Everhart, 46, wife of Clarence F. Everhart, 2893 Ohio 41-N, was pronounced dead on arrival at 10:15 p.m. Saturday at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Everhart, assistant manager at the downtown G.C. Murphy Co. store, was born in Highland County, but had resided in Fayette County for the past 19 years. She was a member of the First Church of the Nazarene.

Cooperation key in local rescue efforts

By MIKE FLYNN
Record-Herald Editor

That old saying "you can't do anything about the weather but talk about it" just isn't true as far as Fayette County is concerned.

Local agencies, businesses, civic and church organizations have displayed an overwhelming spirit of cooperation in efforts to assist persons victimized by a paralyzing blizzard which swept through the county early Friday.

"You can't believe how people are offering to help," said Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson.

Area farmers are volunteering services of heavy equipment to remove stranded vehicles, rural residents are permitting stranded travelers to stay in their homes until road conditions improve, persons are providing their neighbors with vital supplies, organizations and individuals are donating money, clothing and blankets, and restaurants and grocery stores are donating food to the hungry. The list goes on and on.

"The overall response has been tremendous," said Raldon M. Smith, director of the Fayette County Disaster Services Agency. "Neighbors are helping neighbors; everyone is helping."

Over 100 persons used the facilities at the Ohio National Guard Armory on S. Fayette Street over the weekend. The displaced persons, some of whom have been evacuated from their homes here, need three square meals per day and warm clothing. But that's been no problem.

Area restaurants have donated meals and food supplies to stranded persons at the armory while local groceries have also provided all sorts of supplies, including formula for infants, diapers and baby bottles.

"These people really deserve to be commended," said Sgt. First Class Fred West, head cook in the local Ohio Army National Guard unit. West has two cooks on his staff, but they have been assisted by local women in preparing food and hot coffee for the stranded.

Church organizations and individuals have responded to requests for clothing, blankets and pillows to place in the emergency shelter established at the armory. "The response for clothing has been tremendous," said Mrs. Lois Goodson, a volunteer worker at the armory.

Reading material has also been donated to occupy the time of persons stranded at the armory. "We've even had television sets, toys, games and puzzles donated or loaned," Smith said.

One local church furnished a bus from its fleet to transport stranded persons to a local restaurant for food.

The Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross and the local Salvation Army are assuming financial responsibility for food served at the armory and for all food packages prepared for emergency delivery by Ohio National Guard helicopters.

The local Red Cross chapter Sunday received a large shipment of food from the state organization's emergency food storage center in Columbus.

Local officials have also been able to cut bureaucratic red tape in obtaining needed equipment.

Sheriff Thompson said the Ohio Department of Transportation was scheduled to deliver two snow blowers from Port Columbus Airport Sunday night to be used by area departments in clearing drifts from roads.

Sheriff Thompson said Larry Camp, a former sheriff's deputy, worked all weekend with a huge four-wheel drive tractor answering emergency calls which officers could not reach because of road conditions.

Camp, now an auxiliary deputy, assisted local authorities on routine police work, removed numerous autos which had been become stranded on snow-clogged roads in southern Fayette County and assisted in evacuating persons to the emergency shelter at the armory.

Krieger Equipment, Inc., Jeffersonville, also volunteered heavy machinery to remove disabled autos and assist area road departments in clearing drifts from Ohio 41-N in northern Fayette County.

Volunteers from the Fayette County Life Squad staffed a small medical station at the armory and members of local Civil Air Patrol Squadron assisted disaster services agency personnel.

A true spirit of cooperation emerged between local agencies.

"We've received wonderful cooperation all the way around," Smith said. "It's the best demonstration of cooperation that I've seen since I've been here and that's 12 years," Smith said.

FAYETTE COUNTIANS quickly came to the aid of those victimized by a Friday blizzard. Volunteer workers at the Ohio National Guard armory unpack boxes of clothing donated by local organizations and individuals for stranded persons who sought refuge at the armory.

telephone call from a local resident requesting that the Ohio National Guard helicopter pick up his daughter and fly her to Mount Sterling for her wedding, which has been delayed because of weather conditions.

"He said it was an emergency, but I told him that our priorities for emergencies conflicted," the auxiliary deputy said. "The man told me his daughter had been crying her eyes out since Friday," he said.

"Some of the calls are ridiculous," Smith said. "One person who lived a city block from a grocery called and wanted to know if the chopper could bring her cigarettes, dog food and some Pepsi Cola."

Local officials also said a Washington C.H. resident asked for helicopter delivery of two meals ordered from a Columbus Avenue restaurant.

Newsman joins guardsmen on Bookwalter grocery delivery

Editor's note—Record-Herald City Editor Phil Lewis accompanied U.S. Army National Guardsmen on an emergency food run to Bookwalter Sunday afternoon that turned into a seven-hour trip through snow-covered Fayette County.

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

I borrowed a heavy coat, a good pair of gloves, and an army hat complete with earmuffs. I was told that I would need them. They were right.

Capt. Larry Hott, commander of the local Ohio Army National Guard unit, had just given me permission to ride along on a food run to Bookwalter in an armored personnel carrier. I was told it would be a cold trip in the heatless, treaded vehicle.

Over 1,000 pounds of groceries were stacked inside the PC (short for personnel carrier) for the Bookwalter trip. The manager of a small market in Bookwalter had contacted the Fayette County Disaster Services Agency saying that some 50 or 60 families were in need of food.

Bags of flour, 200 loaves of bread, 50 gallons of milk, 300 pounds of potatoes, 25 dozen eggs, and five cases of baby food were among the groceries provided by the Red Cross.

National guardsman Ed Summers and Fayette County sheriff's auxiliary deputy Don Campbell along with myself squeezed into the passenger compartment amid the groceries.

Guardsmen Neil Shirkey was the driver and guardsman Rick Massie helped with the navigation of the vehicle. Both stuck their heads through two portholes in the top of the PC that greatly resembled a green cracker box.

Shirkey fired up the vehicle which he steered with two levers and we headed up Ohio 41-N to Bookwalter at 4:30 p.m.

From the state road, Shirkey turned the PC up Prairie Road, across Wesley Chapel Road, and to the Reid Road.

The ride was bumpy and, as promised, cold. The wind swept down the portholes and turned the armored vehicle into an icebox.

It took approximately 45 minutes to make the 15 mile trip to Bookwalter. On loose dirt, Shirkey said the vehicle would do about 50 miles per hour, but on the snowy pavement 25 miles per hour was tops. Shirkey used to pilot similar vehicles in Korea.

The route to Bookwalter wasn't as snow-covered as was feared. A four-wheel drive truck reportedly could have made the trip. However, newly opened roads quickly drifted over again because of the high winds and the PC could plow over snow drifts.

Upon reaching Bookwalter, about 30 persons were on hand to unload the vehicle and take the food into Lefty Davis' grocery store.

I went in to warm my numb feet and talked to Davis.

He said he was running very low on food not to mention coffee and cigarettes. The last big delivery to his store was Monday, although he received milk and bread on Thursday before the blizzard hit.

The milk went fast, because many local families had babies and small children. The Bookwalter residents were happy to get the food, but a lack of fuel oil was causing just as much concern.

"I'm about out of fuel oil. There's only a little left in the tank," Charles Gillispie, an area resident, said. "I have a wood stove, but only enough wood to last till Wednesday."

The PC left Bookwalter at 5:30 p.m. for what was thought to be a short run to the Jim Mongold residence on the Cars-Mills-Jamestown Road. He was also low on groceries.

We traveled the Harold Road to Ohio 729 where the drifting snow would prevent anything besides the PC from breaking through. Massie reported that drifts on Ohio 729 were 10 to 12 feet high in spots. I was unable to see out the PC, because there were no windows in the three-foot high compartment we were traveling in. However, I had complete faith in Shirkey's driving ability.

Three boxes of groceries were dropped at the Mongold home and we continued down Ohio 729 to the Ernie Jenks residence to pick up 15 gallons of gas.

A pickup truck with four persons in it tried to follow, but got hung up in a snow drift. Summers and Massie hooked a chain to the pickup and Shirkey pulled them free.

The vehicle was turned to Jeffersonville, because Deputy Campbell had received word that a family may have to be evacuated from their home which was low on fuel oil.

We stopped at Jeff Royal Blue market in Jeffersonville to warm up and allow Campbell to make a phone call to the Sheriff's office. The manager, Danny Snyder, let us in and offered free food and drink. My feet were numb and I welcomed the 15-minute break from the PC.

No one needed to be evacuated, but

FOOD DELIVERY — Residents of the Bookwalter area help unload groceries from an Ohio Army National Guard armored personnel carrier Sunday afternoon. The 1,000 pounds of food was taken to the grocery store in Bookwalter to be distributed to an estimated 50 families.

Robert Fugate had five bags of groceries to deliver to his parents house on the Upper Jamestown Road. He had dug his way out of the home Saturday, but drifting snow had made it impossible to return.

We plodded nearly 10 miles to the

Thurman Fugate residence, but had to stop 100 yards from the home because of the Rattlesnake Creek bridge. The 14-ton vehicle would have been too heavy to attempt a crossing.

The Fugates had not been able to replenish their food supply since Wednesday.

Robert Fugate, Summers, Massie, and myself carried the groceries over a huge drift in front of the Fugate home and then climbed back in the PC for a return to Jeffersonville.

We stopped at a Sohio station for more gas and decided to head back to Washington C.H. via I-71 and U.S. 35. Fugate offered to follow the PC down the interstate with his emergency flashers on. Deputy Campbell and myself rode in the car which was unbelievably more comfortable than the PC.

Although we had stopped several times to warm up, I was very cold and could not see how Shirkey and Massie could stand to ride with their heads out the porthole.

We pulled into the Union 76 restaurant for food, which was free of charge, and Deputy Campbell again called the Sheriff's Department. It was 9 p.m.

Campbell reported that there was an elderly couple nearby that was without electricity and Junior Harrison at the truck stop requested a ride home. He had walked out to the truck stop to get groceries earlier.

We headed down the Allen Road through Octa. Drifts were so high that the PC was occasionally at a 45-degree angle. Shirkey cut across a cornfield to avoid several drifts.

When the PC reached the Milledgeville-Octa Road, it met a snowplow and a national guard truck which was attempting to clear a path to the John Minton home to evacuate several people.

It would have taken the plow hours to cut through the drifts. It was decided that the PC would pick the people up.

We reached the Minton residence and loaded Clarence and Wanda Howard, Donald and Barbara Beach, and a dog into the PC. They had been staying with the Minton's for the past three days after they had run out of fuel oil. The Minton's had heat, but the food supply was running low.

We took a 15-minute ride back to the National Guard truck and the snowplow and dropped the passengers off for a more comfortable ride to town. Eight people barely fit in the compartment of the PC. Summers and myself sat on a round disk used to mount a mortar in less peaceful times. It was like sitting on a block of ice.

We continued down the Milledgeville-Octa Road to U.S. 35 in search of the elderly couple without electricity.

Richard Craig gave us gasoline at his home to keep the PC running and Mrs. Craig prepared coffee and hot tea. Deputy Campbell asked the Craigs to put up the elderly couple if they could be persuaded to leave their home. They said they would be glad to accommodate.

However, Campbell called the sheriff's office and was informed the elderly couple was safe and had enough provisions to last until Wednesday.

Then, I received the good news that we were heading back to Washington C.H. We went down U.S. 35 to the Bloomingburg-New Holland Road and then down Ohio 41.

At 11:30 p.m., we arrived at the sheriff's office and I climbed out of the PC for the last time, hopefully.

Governors request coal energy policy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes and Illinois Gov. James Thompson have asked President Carter to call together the chief executives of states suffering from the energy shortage to work toward a national coal-based energy policy.

Their request was announced Sunday during a cabinet meeting here that was opened to the news media. Cabinet officers outlined the steps being taken to alleviate the energy crisis.

The Department of Transportation assigned priorities to special assistance, placing health and safety at the top of the list, followed by delivery of fuel and milk.

Rhodes was told in meetings with representatives of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and Ohio Milk Producers Federation that some milk had to be dumped at farms because trucks were unable to get through to pick up milk supplies.

Meanwhile, a major supplier of natural gas in Ohio and six other states directed the utilities it serves to continue gas cutbacks to all but residential and other high priority customers.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. said Sunday it was continuing its cutback in gas supplies to over 80 gas companies in its seven-state service area at least until Saturday.

The announcement means that the three major utilities supplied by the firm—Columbia Gas of Ohio, Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and Dayton Power & Light Co.—were forced to continue requirements that most industries and commercial firms maintain operations at a minimum level.

Conditions of major arteries improved over the weekend, but many secondary roads remained snowbound. Nearly 500 National Guardsmen using more than 150 pieces of equipment ranging from jeeps and helicopters to tanks, were deployed in 42 counties.

Guardsmen were being used to evacuate stranded motorists and people without food or heat to places of shelters. Many units were helping state, county and municipal workers in clearing clogged roads. Guard aviators flew dozens of medical evacuation missions.

On Sunday Gov. Rhodes ordered a statewide effort to contact elderly and handicapped persons who might have trouble because of the severe weather. The effort was being coordinated by the Commission on Aging, Rehabilitation Services Commission and the welfare department.

"If we wait for people in difficulties to make their own calls for help, it might be too late," Rhodes said. "We must make an effort to reach out to them, especially those with limitations due to age or physical impairment."

In other energy-related developments:

—State Transportation Director David Weir announced that load limits on transportation of fuel oil and gasoline have been raised temporarily to five tons. He noted that Ashland Oil of Kentucky, which supplies up to 40 per cent of its output to Ohio, had a backlog of 700 loads of oil as a result of Friday's snowstorm.

—Ohio educators called for "double use of schools buildings" heated by fuels other than natural gas during the natural gas crisis which has forced more than 50 per cent of the state's public schools to close.

—The state development department said an estimated one million persons, one quarter of Ohio's labor force, would be out of work this week because of the energy situation.

Very versatile crepes

MOLASSES-FLAVORED crepes are filled with a delicious combination of sour cream and poached apple slices.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

LAST YEAR everyone dunked (bread cubes, meat chunks, even cake wedges). Fondue-making was the rage!

This year, the "in" cooking action is rolling because everyone's having a go at crepes.

Like many cooking fads, crepe-making can involve a special appliance. But it needn't—I plucked my crepe-maker (a two-egg skillet) right off the kitchen pegboard.

Basic Instructions

To make it produce perfect crepes I observe three rules:

1. Whether making them over a flame or an electric unit, I'm careful to set the control neither too high (they'll burn) nor too low (they won't brown). Once I found the right temperature, I noted it on the control knob with a dab of nail polish. Result: Perfect crepes every time.

2. Before cooking each crepe, I wipe the pan with an oil-saturated paper towel.

3. I'm careful not to use too much batter. From force of pancake-making habit, there's a tendency to overdo. The facts are: Two tablespoons of batter that is the consistency of heavy cream are enough. Spoon them into the center of pan, then tilt the pan, turning it rapidly to spread the batter evenly.

Crepes should be cooked about 30 seconds on the first side, or until the under-surface is browned to your liking and dry enough to part from the pan with ease. Give the second side about 20 seconds to set — it won't be as beautifully browned as side one, but that's not important. Spoon the filling of your choice on the second side and no one will be the wiser.

Cook Book Help

If you decide to get into crepe-making in a big way, you'll find recipes galore for breakfast, lunch and dessert crepes in Sylvia Schur's excellent "Crepe Cookbook" (Fawcett). Ms. Schur's book lists 25 basic recipes for crepe batter. This is my favorite:

BLENDER CREPES

1 cup milk
4 eggs
1 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
In blender container, combine milk, eggs, flour and salt. Whirl until just combined. Melt butter in crepe pan. Pour into batter. Let batter stand at least 30 minutes before cooking.
Makes 12 to 16 crepes.

Crepe fillings vary. For a nice luncheon entree, try:

CHICKEN FILLING

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 (4 1/2-ounce) cans chunky chicken spread
1 (10-ounce) package frozen broccoli, cooked according to package directions
10 crepes
1 (11-ounce) can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
1-3rd cup dry white wine
Preheat oven to 350 F.

In a saucepan over low heat, melt butter; saute onions 5 minutes. Stir in chicken spread.

Place 2 spears of broccoli across the center of each crepe. Spread two heaping tablespoons of chicken mixture over broccoli.

Fold sides of crepe over the broccoli-chicken filling. Repeat until all crepes are filled. Place on a heatproof serving platter and bake 5 minutes.

Meanwhile prepare cheese sauce by heating soup and wine in a saucepan over medium high heat. Bring to a boil; lower heat. Bring to a boil; lower heat; simmer 5 minutes. Serve over crepes.
Makes 4 to 5 servings.

There's no end to the fabulous desserts you can make with crepes. I love filling them with a warmed mixture of ricotta cheese and crushed strawberries. The combination's absolutely delicious and caloriewise it's not lethal.

Another super suggestion: Whip up Whole Wheat Crepes (the recipe follows), then spoon flavored sour cream and hot Apple Molasses Filling over them; roll and serve:

WHOLE WHEAT CREPES

3 eggs
1 cup milk
1 cup water
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 cup whole wheat flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
4 tablespoons unsulphured molasses, divided
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons almond flavored liqueur
1 cup sour cream Apple Molasses Filling

In blender, combine eggs, milk, water, oil, flour, salt, almond extract and 2 tablespoons molasses; mix until smooth. Stir batter occasionally if flour starts to settle. Batter need not stand before cooking.

Cook crepes, keeping warm until all are done.

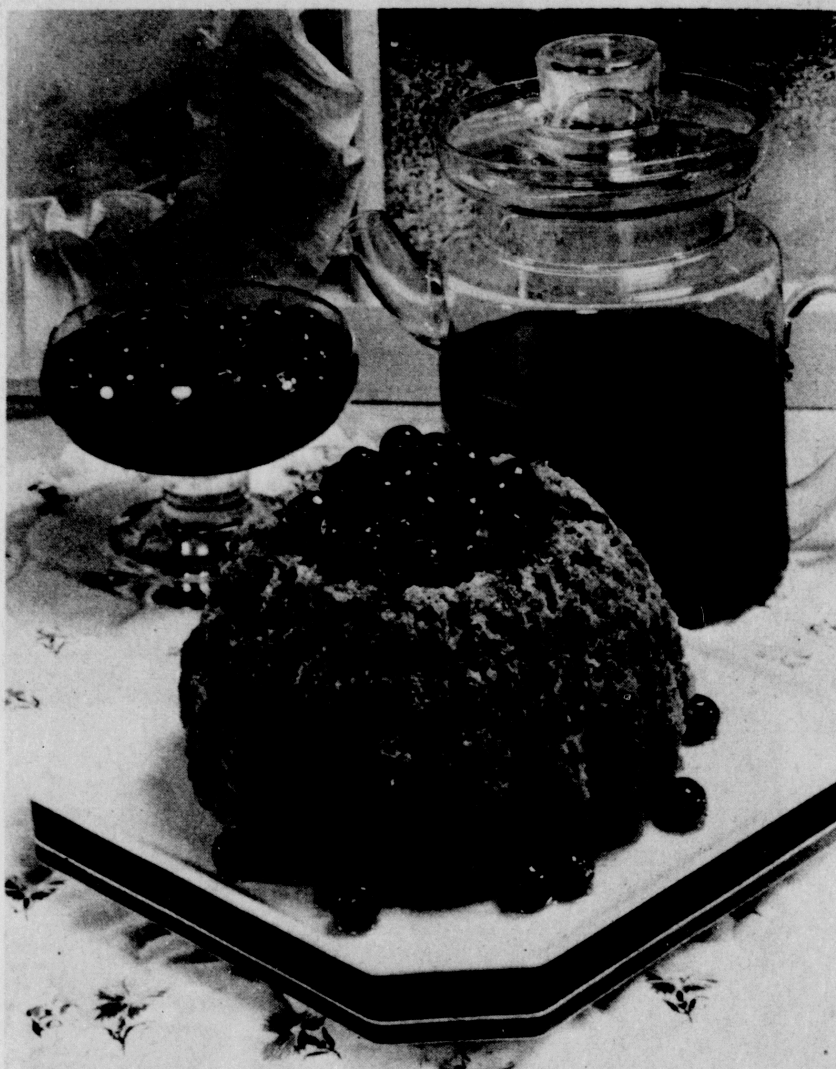

Blend remaining 2 tablespoons molasses, confectioners' sugar and liqueur, into sour cream. Spread a teaspoon of sour cream mixture on each crepe. Arrange 2 to 3 apple slices from Apple Filling (recipe follows) over sour cream. Roll crepe. Top with additional sour cream and sliced almonds.
Makes 16 crepes.

APPLE MOLASSES FILLING

2 cups apple slices
1 tablespoon unsulphured molasses
1 tablespoon almond-flavored liqueur
Poach apple slices in molasses and liqueur over very gentle heat.

The economical Lancastrian system of schools, which employed older students, or monitors, to assist in teaching, was introduced in Ohio in 1816, only a decade after its inauguration in the United States. Such a school was established in Chillicothe in 1816 where books were furnished and the cost for each pupil was only $2.50 a quarter.—AP

When the railroads came to Ohio in the 1830's they played an unimportant part in the location of towns, for most of them had already been laid out by the time, and towns and cities determined the location of the railroads rather than the other way around.—AP

BRAN CRANBERRY CROWN, warm and welcoming, is a dessert with many benefits—flavor, texture and healthful goodness. Bran cereal is an important source of food fiber which should be included in our daily diet.

Hearty bran desserts help warm a winter's night

What could be cozier on a cold winter evening than a warm dessert, rich and filling and somehow comforting against the chill of the season? Bran Cranberry Crown, a classic steamed pudding, is one of the nicest warm desserts you can serve your family.

But don't be timid about trying a steamed pudding. Steaming is a simple technique. Prepare the batter and turn into a greased mold; cook in a large kettle of boiling water until done, cool and unmold. You can do this cake-like pudding, made with Kellogg's All-Bran cereal or Bran Buds cereal early in the day and reheat it in the oven just before serving.

Bran cereal gives this steamed pudding a distinctive sweet and nutty bran flavor that goes so well with the tanginess of fresh cranberries.

There's another excellent reason for making a dessert with bran cereal. Bran cereal is one of the finest sources of natural food fiber. Some medical researchers believe that inadequate fiber in our diets is a factor in some of the common "diseases of civilization," such as cancer of the colon and rectum, heart disease and diverticulitis.

Eating bran cereal at breakfast is one way to increase the fiber in your daily diet. Eating bran desserts is another pleasant way to do it.

BRAN CRANBERRY CROWN

1/2 cup regular margarine or butter
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup packed dark brown sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons brandy or orange juice
1 cup wheat bran cereal
1 cup chopped cranberries
In large bowl cream margarine, orange rind and brown sugar. Beat in egg yolks. Mix flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg; blend into creamed mixture alternately with milk and brandy. Stir in wheat bran cereal and cranberries. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into cereal mixture. Turn into greased and sugared 6-cup pudding mold, cover, and place on a rack in a large kettle. Add boiling water to come half-way up side of mold. Cover kettle and bring water to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours, or until cake tester inserted in center of pudding comes out clean. Remove mold from kettle, cool 10 minutes, unmold and serve with Cranberry Brandy Sauce.

YIELD: 10 to 12 servings.

CRANBERRY BRANDY SAUCE

2 cups cranberries
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 tablespoon brandy or orange juice
In large saucepan mix cranberries, sugar and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil and cook until cranberries begin to pop. Remove from heat and stir in brandy. Serve warm.

CHEWY BRAN MERINGUE DESSERT

3/4 cup wheat bran cereal
1/4 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup chopped pitted dates
1/4 cup chopped walnuts
4 egg whites
1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar

Mix wheat bran cereal and flour. Toss 1-3 cereal mixture with dates and walnuts. Set aside. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar and salt until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar; beat until very stiff. Fold in cereal mixture and date mixture. Turn into greased 9-inch pie plate. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven 25 minutes. Serve warm, cut in wedges, with Orange Cream Topping.
YIELD: 8 servings.

ORANGE CREAM TOPPING

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
3 tablespoons orange juice
1/2 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
Beat all ingredients in small bowl until smooth.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1977

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Mars extremely beneficent. You now have a chance to cash in on good will, to increase your prestige.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

This day's progress could be furthered by joining forces with someone outside your normal circle — but with similar interests, of course.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

A great day for presenting your ingenious ideas. Don't let "stick-in-the-mud" types dissuade you.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Avoid present tendencies toward lethargy and inertia. Self-discipline is one of your strongest traits. Stress it now.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Don't cross others without ample reason. It may be better to wait a bit before making decisions, give time for added factors to appear.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Get together with associates who share your interests to discuss ambitions, hopes, plans for the future, new ideas in general.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be cautious in dealing with associates. Some may urge you to make certain commitments against your better judgment. Don't allow yourself to be pressured.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Don't regard decisions made in the a.m. as final. Certain circumstances may necessitate revisions later in the day.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

A day calling for your best judgment. Don't take action in a tricky situation before you've heard the whole story, and DO try to see the viewpoint of associates.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Be ready for changes. Some surprising orders will be given regarding your duties and responsibilities. Maintain your balance and avoid extremes.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A day for remaining in the background. Your hunches are correct, but this is not the time for taking direct action. Only through subtlety will you win the gains you desire.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

An unexpected discovery you make will prove profitable. Your clue lies in reading between the lines, carefully studying the "fine print."

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely genial and amiable individual. In fact, Aquarius is one of the friendliest Signs and represents that spirit of good will which is the essential quality of true friendship. You are endowed with extraordinary intuition, canny preception and understanding-at-a-glance. You have many interests in life; are adventurous, inventive, philosophical and a lover of the outdoors. You are talented, too, and could build a successful career out of science, music, painting or literature.

Three killed in accidents

By The Associated Press

At least three men were killed in traffic accidents on Ohio roadways this weekend, the Highway Patrol said. One of the deaths occurred near Van Wert when a 67-year-old Middle Point man was struck by a car while trying to dig his vehicle out of a snow drift, the Highway Patrol said.

The patrol keeps its weekend fatality count from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

The dead:

SUNDAY

MEDINA — Gary G. Morrison, 23, of Seville in a two-car accident on a Medina County road.

SATURDAY

VAN WERT — Ray Crowe, 67, of Middle Point, struck by a car while trying to dig his auto out of a snow drift.

ASHTABULA — Hammie Banks, 59, Chicago, when his semi rig ran off the road and hit the rear of a parked semi on Interstate 90 about five miles east of Ashtabula.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, PROBATE DIVISION, FAYETTE COUNTY, OHIO

Case No. 77-1-PA-380

IN THE MATTER OF THE ADOPTION OF: Shane Kelly Downs.

TO: Victor Allen Justice

You are hereby notified that on the 19th day of January, 1977, a petition for the adoption of Shane Kelly Justice, who was born on the 31st day of March, 1975, at Pike County, Kentucky, was filed in the Court of Common Pleas, Probate Division, Fayette County, Ohio, and that the hearing on said petition will be had before the Judge of said Court on the 9th day of March, 1977, at 10:00 o'clock A.M. It is alleged in said petition that you, as father of said child, have willfully failed to properly support and maintain said child for a period of more than two (2) years immediately preceding the filing of said petition.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Back in 1974, ABC had a nifty series, "Kolchak, the Night Stalker." It had fun with journalism. Tonight, CBS starts the other kind of newshawk series, "The Andros Targets."

It stars James Sutorius as Mike Andros, ace scribe for a New York newspaper, the Forum, whose motto is, "A Free Press, a Free Country." (My old paper's motto was, "Please Don't Feed the Staff." But I digress.)

The Forum is where a copy editor cries, "15 minutes to deadline, paragraphs, please," where the city editor tells the managing editor, "Chet, if Mike is right about this, it could be a front page story."

Mike is the kind of investigative reporter who, when inspecting a file folder of incriminating documents guaranteed to Blow the Lid Off This Town, murmurs: "Whoa, this is powerful stuff."

But Mike isn't your typical hard-boiled old reporter. He's fairly young, his suit is pressed, no battered derby covers his head, no cigarette dangles from his lip and his trenchcoat is very clean. Unlike those ink-stained wretches who consider human beings as stories wrapped in skin, this newshawk has heart. He cares.

This is obvious when he tries to help a distraught father from Youngstown, Ohio. Pop thinks his daughter, a struggling young actress named

DeeDee, was a murder victim, not a suicide as New York cops say.

While we learn right off that DeeDee was involved in porn flicks, filched a certain file from her producer's office and mailed it to her actor boyfriend, Mike does not know this. At first.

But he quickly finds out, learns she was trying to go straight. He also uncovers a lurid extortion scam by a porn operation so mysterious not even The Mob knows who is bankrolling it.

Mike gets to the bottom of things with time-tested investigative techniques, including the asking of questions.

And when the porn producer's secretary won't let him in to grill the villain, Mike rolls out the big threat: "You tell him to read The Forum tomorrow, page one, column one..."

Well, faced with that, the producer, sneeringly played by F. Murray Abraham, relents. He speaks, he lies, but to no avail.

Twists and turns ensue, likewise some mighty gamey dialogue by the producer to DeeDee's father in one traumatic scene.

But finally, Mike, aided by a comely young rookie reporter (Pamela Reed), breaks the Big Story, even though he'd told one potential fink, a porn actress, "I don't buy information, Alice."

He don't buy a good script, either.

"The Andros Targets," an obvious 21-inch variation of "All the President's Men," was filmed in New York, rather than Hollywood. You can tell because the actors frown more.

New York is where TV producers go to show they can handle realistic drama. If tonight's opener is any indication, Mike Andros of the Forum better call the cops. His newspaper has been mugged.

St. John's Episcopal Church in Lancaster, built in 1848, has links with the Duke of Lancaster and the War of the Roses fought 400 years before in England. Plaster roses painted white, color of the Duke of York, are sprinkled over the church auditorium ceiling which is red, color of the House of Lancaster in that war.—AP

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA
Representative To Congress
6th District, Ohio

Congress has more than enough incentive in 1977 to bring federal spending in line with federal income. President Carter's announced spending and tax plans add up to a deficit in the neighborhood of $75 billion, and that is a jump from last year's $65 billion-plus deficit.

Combined with a federal debt of almost $700 billion, these inflation-producing deficits offer yet another warning to another new Congress of the perils of failing to put the Federal Government's financial house in order.

For decades, Democrat-controlled Congresses have failed to heed this warning, even during Republican Presidential administrations. Obviously, the problem could be compounded with a Democrat in the White House. Nevertheless, as Congress sits down to decide on budget targets for the next fiscal year, matching expenditures with revenue should be the first priority.

I have joined in sponsoring an Amendment to the Constitution (House Joint Resolution 14) that would prevent the Federal Government from spending more money than it takes in, except in periods of national emergency, such as wartime.

The resolution also calls for repayment of the national debt over a period of 100 years at the rate of one per cent each year. We now pay over $40 billion in interest alone on that debt annually.

However involved the Constitutional Amendment process may be, it will have more staying power than a simple bill introduced for the same purpose. A law passed by one Congress can easily be changed by the succeeding one.

For 40 years, people in the highest levels of government have been talking about the problems we face when the Federal Government spends more than it takes in, year after year.

Even Franklin D. Roosevelt, in 1932, expressed concern about a balanced federal budget. He said, "Revenues must cover expenditures by one means or another. Any government, like any family, can, for a year, spend a little more than it earns. But, you and I both know that a continuation of that habit means the poorhouse."

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in the strongest possible language, put it this way:

"We believe in paying as we go for what we do or get. I believe that continued deficit spending is immoral. Even in the short run, unnecessary deficit spending is just as wrong. Debasing our currency leads to inflation — the most cynical of all policies, for it strikes most cruelly at the retired, the pensioned, and those who have the least."

Secret Service protection received by Carter child

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Amy Carter tends to her studies in a fourth-grade classroom in Washington, Secret Service agents wait outside, trying to be inconspicuous. As Susan Ford scurries to classes at the University of Kansas, Secret Service agents trail her.

They are just two of the increasing number of individuals Congress has ordered the Secret Service to protect.

Amy, 9-year-old daughter of President Carter, gets protection due the immediate family of the president.

Susan, 19, daughter of former President Gerald Ford, gets protection for up to six months because of a special law passed by Congress this year.

For fiscal 1977, the Secret Service estimated it needs 3,667 employees, 1,529 of them special agents, and a budget of $110 million.

That's the outlay for all the agency's work: suppressing counterfeiting, investigating check and bond forgeries, protecting individuals, buildings and grounds and safeguarding government securities. All the activities are on the upswing.

Currently, the Secret Service protects two dozen or more individuals. The number varies. It includes certain U.S. officials and their immediate families, visiting heads of state and, "at the direction of the President," other foreign visitors and official U.S. representatives on special missions abroad.

In a presidential election year it includes major national candidates unless protection is declined. It includes wives of such candidates for 60 days before the general election.

The Secret Service doesn't want to tip its hand as to who is getting protection or when, where and especially how a subject is guarded.

However, the law is specific in some instances.

Longet set to appeal

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet, comforted by exhusband Andy Williams as she faced sentencing today for killing her lover, will definitely appeal if ordered to serve time in jail, her attorney says.

"Any jail time at all for her would be horrible," said Charles Weedman of Los Angeles, lawyer for the French-born entertainer.

"Quite frankly, she's wearied by all this," he said, "and I don't know if any appeal will be filed if there's no jail time. Of course, if a jail term is ordered, there is no question there will be an appeal."

Maximum penalty for Miss Longet's misdemeanor conviction is two years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

State District Court Judge George Lohr had a choice of sending her to state prison, the reformatory or the county jail, fining her or putting her on probation, Weedman said.

Skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich died March 21, 1976, of a single bullet wound in the stomach from a .22 caliber pistol. Miss Longet said the gun went off accidentally while she was learning to use it.

She was convicted Jan. 14 by a district court jury of criminally negligent homicide. Jurors rejected prosecution arguments that she was guilty of reckless manslaughter, a felony that can carry a 10-year prison term.

A presentence probation report said that if Miss Longet were sentenced to any consecutive days in jail, she planned to send her three children by Williams to live with him in California temporarily. The couple was divorced in 1975.

The children, Noelle, 13, Christian, 11, and Bobby, 7, lived with Miss Longet and Sabich at his $250,000 mountainside chalet.

Philadelphia opens gap stunning Denver, 107-101

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
"You can't play for three quarters and expect to win against good teams," says Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue. So his 76ers went out and played for four quarters — and beat a very good team.

The 76ers, who have won 11 of their last 14 games and opened a 7½-game lead in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division, invaded Denver's McNichols Arena Sunday and that they plan to return in March. Eighth-ranked UCLA put on a devastating shooting display in snapping No. 7 Tennessee's 12-game winning streak 103-89 before a national television audience. The next important collegiate basketball games to be played in the Omni are the NCAA semifinals late in March, and the 16-2 Bruins appear to be a solid bet to be involved.

The Bruins were paced by sophomore guard Roy Hamilton's 30 points and forward Marques Johnson's 24, including several spectacular slam dunks.

Tennessee, 14-3, trailed throughout and rallied just once when Ernie Grunfeld's three-point play with just under 17 minutes left narrowed UCLA's lead to 56-52. Bernard King had 31 points for Tennessee and Grunfeld 23 before fouling out with 5:14 remaining.

While top-ranked San Francisco survived a scare by Santa Clara before subduing the Broncos 71-70 Saturday night for the second time last week, several other members of The Associated Press Top 20 were not so lucky. The other four members of the top five all lost, although No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas' 104-77 defeat by Athletes in Action was only an exhibition game.

No. 2 Michigan was upset by lowly (5-13) Northwestern 99-87. No. 3 Alabama lost a key Southeastern Conference battle at home to No. 6 Kentucky 87-85, and fourth-ranked North Carolina ended an 0-2 week with an Atlantic Coast Conference loss to No. 19 Clemson 93-73.

In other games involving the Top 20, No. 9 Marquette romped over DePaul 85-64; 10th-rated Wake Forest topped Appalachian State 83-73; No. 11 Louisville took Rhode Island 105-87; 12th-ranked Cincinnati beat Duquesne 83-65; Minnesota, No. 13, beat Big Ten Conference rival Ohio State 77-67; 15th-placed Arkansas defeated Baylor 68-59; No. 16 Arizona stopped Colorado State 77-72. 18th-ranked Purdue edged Illinois 66-63, and No. 20 Memphis State outshot Dayton 81-67.

No. 14 Providence was idle and No. 17 Syracuse's game against La Salle was postponed because of heavy snow. Several other college games also were postponed throughout the storm-plagued East and Midwest.

San Francisco squeezed by Santa Clara on Chubby Cox' basket with two seconds left. The Dons recovered from a 16-point second-half deficit.

Northwestern Coach Tex Winter called the victory over Michigan "the sweetest win I've ever had in basketball."

- Here's how the top 20 teams in the Associated Press college basketball poll fared last week:
1. San Francisco (21-0) beat Santa Clara, 74-68; beat Santa Clara 71-70.
 2. Michigan (15-2) beat Ohio State, 92-81; beat Wisconsin, 69-64; lost to Northwestern, 99-87.
 3. Alabama (15-2) beat Georgia, 78-74; OT; lost to Kentucky, 87-85.
 4. North Carolina (13-4) lost to Wake Forest, 67-66; lost to Clemson, 93-73.
 5. Nevada-Las Vegas (16-1) did not play.

Szymanski new Colts head

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dick Szymanski, the new general manager of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, is full of surprises.

In accepting the job Wednesday — after having served 22 years as a player, coach, scout and front office employee — Szymanski surprisingly said it was not a challenge.

"I'm not going to say it's a challenge," Szymanski said at a news conference. "Life is a challenge. This is pleasure."

Teams ready for Milan cycle race

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Eighteen two-man teams will start in the rich Milan six-day cycling race, scheduled for Feb. 12-18, organizers announced today.

The Belgian duo of Freddy Maertens and Marc Demeyer; the Italian-Dutch team of Francesco Moser and Rene Pijnen; and Italian veteran Felice Gimondi paired with Belgium's Rick Van Linden are rated as the teams to beat in the marathon.

Maertens is the defending world open road champion. His close rival, Moser, is the world pursuit champion and winner of the 1976 Milan six-day race.

Belgian star Eddy Merckx will not compete.

George McGinnis had 31 points and 12 rebounds.

The victory, in the matchup between the teams with the best record in each conference, was the 76ers' 12th road triumph in 25 games — the best mark in the NBA. And it was only Denver's third home loss in 27 games.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, the Milwaukee Bucks beat the New York Nets 100-92, the Golden State Warriors defeated the Boston Celtics 109-92, the San Antonio Spurs edged the Seattle SuperSonics 126-118 in overtime, the Detroit Pistons trimmed the Indiana Pacers 127-120, the Washington Bullets beat the Kansas City Kings 112-98, the Portland Trail Blazers downed the Phoenix Suns 97-91 and the Los Angeles Lakers edged the New Orleans Jazz 101-99.

Buffalo at Cleveland was postponed because of snow.

The 76ers hit 66 per cent of their field goal attempts in the first half for a 61-53 lead and never were caught. The Nuggets got 26 points from Dan Issel and 25 from Bobby Jones.

Two of the featured players were hardly factors in the game. David Thompson scored 18 for Denver and Julius Erving managed only eight for Philadelphia.

Bucks 100, Nets 92
Former Nets player Swen Nater scored 20 points and grabbed 18 rebounds, helping Milwaukee erase a seven-point fourth-quarter deficit and hand New York its 16th loss in the last 17 games.

Warriors 109, Celtics 92
Golden State's guards did the most damage to the Celtics, Phil Smith scoring 35 points and Gus Williams 20. The Warriors outscored Boston 30-16 in the fourth quarter, dealing the Celtics their fifth loss in the last six games.

Spurs 126, Sonics 118, OT
San Antonio outscored Seattle 20-12 in overtime. Larry Kenon and George Gervin combining for 18 of those points. Gervin led all scorers with 42 points, while Slick Watts had 30 for Seattle.

Pistons 127, Pacers 120
Marvin Barnes had his best game in the NBA, scoring 33 points and grabbing 11 rebounds, as Detroit dealt Indiana its seventh loss in eight games.

Bullets 112, Kings 98
Washington won its eighth in a row as Phil Chenier scored 26 points, Elvin Hayes 24 and rookie Mitch Kupchak 22. The Bullets took a 57-41 halftime lead and coasted to their 14th victory in the last 16 starts.

Lakers 101, Jazz 99
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 13 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, rallying the Lakers to their 19th straight home court victory. Pete Maravich scored 29 for the Jazz, which suffered its 10th consecutive loss on the road.

Trail Blazers 99, Suns 91
Portland, playing without star center Bill Walton, who was injured, got balanced scoring, led by Maurice Lucas' 21 points, in winning its 25th home game at home against only one loss. Phoenix' Paul Westphal led all scorers with 24 points.

Olympic champs to compete in track meet

NEW YORK (AP)—Olympic champions Hasely Crawford of Trinidad and Don Quarrie of Jamaica will head a star-studded field in the 50-meter dash at the U.S. Olympic Invitational Track Meet Feb. 12 at Madison Square Garden, it was announced today.

Others in the field will include Harvey Glance, fourth in the Olympic 100-meter in which Crawford and Quarrie finished one-two, respectively; Steve Riddick, unbeaten in six races this season; swift teen-ager Houston McTear of Santa Monica City College, and Dr. Delano Meriwether, Olympian Ed Preston and Tony Easley, also of Auburn.

In addition to his runner-up finish in the Olympic 100, Quarrie won the 200-meter race in the Games at Montreal.

Wagner
Reds' GM

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Dick Wagner has been named General Manager of the Cincinnati Reds, it was announced Saturday by Bob Howsam, President of the team.

Wagner has been a part of the Reds' organization since February, 1967, and has been Executive Vice President for the past year, a title he will retain in addition to that of General Manager.

"It gives me pleasure and satisfaction to make this announcement," said Howsam. "Dick and I have worked together for more than a dozen years and I have great respect for his ability."

"This move reflects the steadily increasing duties and responsibilities that Dick has undertaken for the company in recent years."

"He will be in charge of our day-to-day operations and have increased involvement in the long-range planning of the company, relating to activities both on and off the playing field," Howsam added. "Dick's business knowledge has been and will continue to be a vital factor in the success of the Reds."

"I appreciate the confidence shown in me by Bob Howsam and look forward to the added responsibilities," said Wagner. "Cincinnati Reds' fans are the very best and all of us in the organization are dedicated to providing a continued quality operation, both on and off the field, for these fans."

"The challenges facing sports today are severe, but we have an ownership and a staff equal to these challenges," Wagner added.

Wagner got his start in baseball in 1947 as general manager of the Thomasville, Ga. team. He had later management positions with minor league baseball teams in Flint, Mich.; Miami, Fla.; San Antonio, Tex.; Hutchinson, Kan.; and Lincoln, Neb. He was named Minor League Executive of the Year by The Sporting News for his work at Lincoln in 1957.

In addition to his baseball experience, Wagner has been an executive with Ice Capades in Hollywood, Calif.; general manager of a radio station in Salina, Kan.; general manager of the Forum in Los Angeles; and manager of the Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln.

He was Director of Promotion and Sales for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1965 and 1966. He joined the Reds in 1967 as Assistant to the Executive Vice President and was later named Assistant to the President; Vice President, Administrative; and Executive Vice President.

Willie Mays hit .307 in 24 All-Star games. Three of his 23 hits were home runs.

TO PLAY OR NOT TO PLAY — Swedish tennis star Bjorn Borg, defending World Championship Tennis (WCT) champion, has decided not to play to WCT tour this season. WCT officials claim they have a verbal agreement from Borg while the young tennis phenom states there is no such agreement to play the circuit. WCT officials were expected to file suit against Borg. Minnesota, Thompson demoralize Buckeyes

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—"The story of the game was Michael Thompson," said Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller, matter-of-factly.

Miller, a first-year coach in the Big Ten, had just finished watching an awesome offensive performance by the 6-foot-10 Thompson that sparked Minnesota to a 77-67 victory over his Buckeyes Saturday night.

The junior center exploded for nine of his game-high 31 points in a span of two minutes and 28 seconds late in the contest that demoralized Ohio State's upset bid.

Thompson hit a turn-around jumper from the baseline, a slam dunk and free throw, short jump shot and reverse lay-in as Minnesota stretched a 57-56 advantage with 5:28 left into a 66-57 lead with three minutes left in the game.

"Coach Dutcher has been on me to start looking for the shots," explained Thompson, the league's leading scorer with a 24.7 average. "It's important, though, to be sure you've got a good shot."

The fluid Thompson, who has taken only an average of 15 shots a game this season, is hitting 61 per cent of his attempts.

"The thing we've got to be careful about is that we don't go to Mike so much that the rest of the guys quit trying to score," said Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher. "We can't simplify their defenses for them."

Ray Williams added 21 points for Minnesota, now 15-1 overall and 6-1 in the league. The Gophers are in a virtual first-place tie with Michigan and Purdue in the Big Ten. Michigan is 8-1 and Purdue 7-1.

Ohio State, which slipped to 2-6 in the conference and 7-10 overall, was led by junior forward Terry Burris, who scored 15 points and grabbed nine rebounds.

"We played well, very well, at times," said Miller. "We had played our worst game of the season Thursday night so I was happy to see us come back so well."

Ohio State also played without freshman guard Kelvin Ransey, who leads the team in scoring with a 13.7 average. Ransey had the flu and did not dress. Miller said he expects Ransey will be back for Saturday's game at Michigan.

Child abusers can find help

The National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse tells us that child abuse is now epidemic not only in the United States, but throughout the world. Last year, approximately one million American children were abused, and two thousand died painful deaths from beatings, burns, immersion in scalding water, etc.

Neglect (failure to provide a child with the basic necessities of life: food, clothing, shelter or medical care) is also child abuse. So is using a child for sexual gratification.

Child abuse can leave permanent physical scars—a crippled limb, impaired vision, a hearing loss and even brain damage. It causes antisocial behavior, failure in school, juvenile delinquency and emotional problems.

Parents who abuse their children need the kind of help that is now available through Parents Anonymous. It was founded by parents who had abused their children and had the courage to organize and seek solutions to their problem. They are headquartered at 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, Calif. 90278.

There are now 450 chapters in more than 300 cities. You can reach them toll free. In California dial 1-800-352-0386. Outside California, dial 1-800-421-1353. Some questions:

Do you sometimes physically hurt your child because you're angry with yourself?

Were you mistreated as a child and now find yourself repeating your past? Do you feel inadequate as a parent? Depressed? Unable to cope?

After punishing your child severely are you heartsick, ashamed and disgusted with yourself to the point of prayers and tears?

Have you ever injured your child, and then lied about it? ("He fell down the stairs," or "out of bed"?)

If you can see yourself in any of the above situations, don't be ashamed. You are not alone. Call P.A.

Here are some questions and answers that might be helpful:

Who may report a case of child abuse? Anybody can.

Do I have any legal protection when I report a suspected case of child abuse? Yes. Persons who report in good faith are granted immunity from civil and criminal court action, even if the report proves to be erroneous.

How sure must I be before I report? There is no rule. If there is serious doubt, resolve the doubt in favor of the child, and report.

Must I identify myself when I report? No, but it would be better if you did.

Is hitting "child abuse"? It depends on the age of the child, what part of body is hit, what was used to inflict the punishment and how serious the injuries are.

Do abusive parents hate their children? No. Most parents love their children, but in time of anger, they strike out at whoever is closest.

Do abusive parents ever learn to cope with their problems, and can the children be safely returned home? Yes. If parents receive the right kind of support and treatment, they can learn to handle their anger, and their children can be safely in their care.

Does jailing abusive parents help solve the problem? No. It only satisfies society's need for retribution and protects the child only temporarily. Imprisonment does not provide treatment and counseling, which is what the abusive parents desperately need.

There are more than a dozen government, private, volunteer and specialized programs dealing with the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Parents Anonymous is a good place to start if one wants to know more about the project.

If you think you need help, call P.A. now. If you suspect that a child you know is being abused, please, please report it. All reports will be strictly confidential, and your name will be withheld.

Children should be seen-not hurt.

Speaking of Your Health...

Forcing Food Down with Water

Even when I eat moist food, every once in awhile I've got to force the food down with large quantities of water. The food seems to get stuck in my throat. Can a growth be the cause of this situation? — Mr. G.E.W., Miss.

Dear Mr. W.:
No Medical column or magazine article can be a substitute for the valuable relationship between a patient and his doctor.

Any advice I would give you about this would further exaggerate the fears that seem to be keeping you from seeking professional advice.

When I point out the possibilities to be considered in your case I'm sure you will understand the point I am making.

Yes, a tumor, benign or cancerous, can cause an obstruction in the esophagus that would make it difficult to swallow food. Now that would be a terrifying thought. Yet there are other less important possibilities. A small pouch, or diverticulum, can produce the same symptoms.

Spasm of the muscular wall of the esophagus, birth abnormalities, enlargement of the heart, tumors of the lung, a foreign body or psychological disturbances may cause identical symptoms.

Hiatus hernia, and a condition known as "achalasia," could also be responsible.

You know, of course, that I am not suggesting that you have any of these problems. But I am deliberately using this method to show how wrong it is to attempt to guess at a diagnosis.

There may also be other relatively unimportant reasons for your complaint. Medical consultation, followed by X-ray studies and blood studies, can easily locate your problem. This is a much more sensible approach to a problem that needs to be clarified.

I have a painful spur on the heel. Does this mean that it is a forerunner of arthritis of the joints? — Mr. B.D., Mich.
Dear Mr. D.:

Spurs are not considered to be arthritic in nature. They are deposits of calcium in the tendons and muscles of the heel. They are frequently found among people who are subject to repeated injuries. Athletes and professional dancers are prone to these painful spurs.

Relief from pain can be obtained by protecting the heel with a foam rubber sponge. Cortisone can be effective in some cases. Surgery, in selected instances, is very helpful, too.

County remains virtually paralyzed

Record-Herald Editor

Helicopter rescue missions were continuing today in an attempt to assist rural residents isolated by drifting snow and sub-zero temperatures.

Ohio Army National Guard Personnel, Fayette County sheriff's deputies and other workers conducted an estimated 300 rescue missions over the weekend.

The missions included evacuation of rural residents who have been left without food, fuel and proper medical attention since a blizzard paralyzed the county early Friday.

"We're dealing with emergency cases first, those persons without medicine, food and fuel," said Fayette County Donald L. Thompson.

Many of the rescue and evacuation missions have been completed by Ohio National Guard helicopters which have been flying almost continuously since Friday night. Heavy motorized equipment is being used to reach persons in other remote areas.

"It's a great feeling to jump out of that helicopter and carry food to people," said Ed Summers, a member of the local Ohio Army National Guard unit. "It really makes you feel like you're doing something worthwhile."

Only one serious medical case has been reported by Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

A three-week-old infant and his parents were evacuated by helicopter Saturday from a residence in the Hedge Run Subdivision, off Wentz Road in northern Fayette County. The family had been without heat.

Sheriff Thompson said the infant developed severe respiratory problems en route to Washington C.H.

After the helicopter landed at the Washington Square Shopping Center, the infant was placed in a sheriff's cruiser and rushed to the emergency room at Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

The infant was revived and was released Sunday following treatment.

An Ohio National Guard helicopter also evacuated a victim who was involved in a traffic accident near Greenfield on Ohio 28. Local authorities said the victim suffered a possible spleen injury.

Nearly all other medical attention cases have involved frostbite. A small emergency medical station has been established at the Ohio National Guard armory on S. Fayette Street. Serious cases are being transferred to Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Local distributors have noted shortages in fuel oil, kerosene and other petroleum products. Raldon M. Smith, Fayette County Disaster Services Agency director, said the state is allocating additional supplies. It has been estimated that 10,000 rural residents depend on fuel oil to heat their homes.

While helicopters have dropped or taken food to scattered areas, at least two bulk food deliveries were made over the weekend.

More than 1,000 pounds of food were delivered by a 14-ton armored personnel carrier to a Bookwalter grocery store to resupply families in northwestern Fayette County. A large food supply was delivered to the Good Hope community in southern Fayette County today.

Meanwhile, road conditions have not improved greatly.

Area road and highway department crews have been hampered by strong winds in efforts to clear snow-clogged thoroughfares. Workmen have been plagued by the winds which continue to cause drifts, in some cases six to seven feet high.

Sheriff's deputies reported today that virtually all county roads remain closed. Officers said U.S. 22, both east and west of Washington C.H., is the only highway open to traffic. They said U.S. 35, between Washington C.H. and Interstate 71, was open to emergency traffic only Monday. The roadway was free of drifts but was covered with ice.

"Our present (road) equipment is ineffective," Sheriff Thompson said. The county sheriff arranged for two snow blowers from the Port Columbus Airport to be delivered to assist county road crews. The machinery was expected to be delivered here today by the Ohio Department of Transportation.

Ohio National Guard personnel have been assisting area road crews in attempts to remove an estimated 200 abandoned vehicles from roadways. The guardsmen are operating five-ton wreckers and other heavy equipment. Bulldozers from neighboring counties are also assisting in road clearing operations.

Sheriff Thompson said he estimates that 200 persons were stranded in the county over the weekend and were staying in various homes throughout the county. Many local residents who commute to other cities were stranded outside the county over the weekend.

Ohio National Guard personnel continued water delivery operations to Washington C.H. residents who have experienced frozen service lines.

Between 100 and 200 displaced and stranded persons used facilities at the Ohio National Guard armory over the weekend. Many of them had been evacuated from area homes.

Mother, three children evacuated

Copter answers prayers for area woman

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

Early Sunday morning, Mrs. Anna Lee Davis' prayers were answered.

An Ohio Army National Guard helicopter landed near her snowbound home on Old Charleston Road in southern Fayette County Road and evacuated Mrs. Davis and her three small children.

"I wasn't expecting anybody," she said from the warmth of the Ohio National Guard Armory on S. Fayette Street. "Truthfully, I was praying that someone would come."

Mrs. Davis' car wouldn't start and even if it did she wouldn't have been able to go anywhere after the blizzard hit early Friday morning.

She was running low on heating fuel and her milk supply for Hollie Ann, 1, Rodney, 2, and Margaret, 4, was nearly exhausted. To make matters worse, Mrs. Davis did not have a telephone to call for assistance.

In fact, the only way the Davis' were found was through her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wagner. They called the Fayette County Sheriff's Department to ask for assistance in reaching their daughter and grandchildren. Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson notified the Ohio Army National Guard and a helicopter was dispatched.

The whole Davis situation had Sheriff Thompson wondering how many more families were stranded in remote areas and could not get a call out for help.

The Wagners dropped food off at their daughter's home Thursday. But following Friday's blizzard, the Wagners were snowed in at their home on the Pavey Road.

"The wind blew so hard it blew the plastic off the windows," Mrs. Davis said, thinking back to the blizzard.

When her car wouldn't start after the storm, she began to worry. Hollie had a slight fever and Rodney has an allergy condition that requires medication. But, there was no way to call for help.

After the Ohio National Guard helicopter landed near her home off U.S. 62-S, guardsmen led her and her three, bundled children aboard.

"I was in such a daze, I didn't even know it was cold," she said.

She added that her children were well behaved on the helicopter trip to the landing area at the Washington Square Shopping Center parking lot and didn't appear to be scared. As for Mrs. Davis, "I loved it."

From the helicopter the Davis family was transported to Fayette County Memorial Hospital where the three children were checked by doctors. Then, they were taken to the armory with the rest of the victims stranded by the blizzard or taken from their homes. "I feel like I'm in a daydream," Mrs. Davis said after being interviewed by network news media and area television reporters.

JUDY GODEK was also at the armory Sunday and she ran to embrace her husband after he arrived from Dayton.

She was driving to McArthur in Southern Ohio for a court appearance Friday morning when the blizzard hit. Six friends were in the car when it became stranded on U.S. 35 between Washington C.H. and Chillicothe.

IN AN EFFORT to provide subscribers with coverage of a blizzard which swept through the county Friday, the editorial page has been omitted today.

CAMERAS WERE rolling in Washington C.H. over the weekend as Ohio television stations and major network television news crews reported on the blizzard.

Saturday, Associated Press reporters as well as a camera crew from ABC television arrived by helicopter to interview the many stranded motorists.

Sunday at the Ohio Army National Guard Armory, a camera crew from CBS in Chicago was at work. They were also brought in by helicopter along with a news team from WCMH-TV in Columbus. A woman reporter from WBNS drove in late Sunday afternoon in search of news worthy items in Fayette County.

Commissioners approve resolution

County remains under emergency declaration

Fayette County remained under a state of emergency Monday as efforts continued to assist persons victimized by violent weather conditions.

The resolution declaring an emergency in the county was approved late Saturday night by members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners.

The document, which was drafted by Fayette County prosecuting attorney James A. Kiger, was delivered for signing by an Ohio Army National Guard helicopter to commission chairman Ray D. Warner at his home on Fairview Road in Wayne Township and to commissioner Robert Mace at his residence on Ohio 38 near Bloomingburg.

Area law enforcement agencies, the disaster services agency and other county officials said the declaration was drafted following a meeting Saturday night.

The declaration authorizes local agencies "to implement all services necessary and to take any and all action necessary to save, protect and preserve the life and property of all citizens of this county." The document further stated that "an emergency exists in the county and many citizens will be subject to losses of property and possibly their lives unless immediate remedial action is taken."

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said the declaration provides local agencies "the authority to proceed with things we couldn't do under normal circumstances."

Meanwhile, a centralized communications center for local rescue workers has been established at the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

Four additional emergency telephone lines were installed at the sheriff's office by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. workers late Saturday night.

The additional phone lines are helping to relieve a heavy influx of calls received by officers. Ohio Army National Guard personnel are assisting regular and auxiliary sheriff's deputies in answering calls.

Persons requiring assistance should call 335-3333.

Educators eye double use of Ohio schools

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio educators called for "double use of schools buildings" heated by fuels other than natural gas during the weather-related natural gas crisis which has forced more than 50 per cent of the state's public schools to close.

The proposal was one of several endorsed by representatives of educational groups, including superintendents, and state officials during a meeting over the weekend. The session was requested by Martin W. Essex, state superintendent of public instruction.

Double use of school buildings not shutdown by the natural gas shortage would allow elementary schools to conduct two four-hour sessions, Essex said.

The state superintendent also suggested that facilities other than school buildings be considered for classes. He named church halls, hospitals, banks and colleges as possible sites.

Essex said nearly 30 per cent of Ohio's school districts could remain open, either because sufficient gas is available or through use of alternate fuels.

But for those forced to close, he said, school administrators would encourage teachers to make long range assignments and consider permitting students to keep their textbooks during shutdowns.

Media lessons and learning plans will be published in a Columbus newspaper beginning this week.

Supplier to maintain cutback

Natural gas problems remain, despite rise in temperatures

By The Associated Press
Temperatures were to rise to the comparatively balmy 20s today, but Ohio could only expect the problems caused by natural gas shortages to remain at the status quo.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., a major gas supplier to utilities in Ohio and six other states, said it was maintaining its cutback in allotments to over 80 gas companies in its service area.

That means that three major Ohio firms supplied by the transmission company—Columbia Gas of Ohio, Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and Dayton Power & Light Co.—must continue to hold back supplies to all but residential and other high priority customers. That policy has shut down many industries, schools and businesses, idling an estimated one million workers, 25 per cent of the state's work force.

Columbia Transmission—which serves Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, New York and the District of Columbia—said it was acting in accordance with Federal Power Commission regulations and directives designed to deal with gas emergencies.

The supplier cut its daily allotments to customers by about 20 per cent last Thursday, the company indicated. In a news release, a spokesman said the persistent cold weather has cut deeply into stocks of underground storage gas and has sharply reduced the amount of gas it can deliver from storage each day.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Columbia Gas, the state's largest gas utility, said the situation was holding steady.

mission regulations and directives designed to deal with gas emergencies.

The supplier cut its daily allotments to customers by about 20 per cent last Thursday, the company indicated. In a news release, a spokesman said the persistent cold weather has cut deeply into stocks of underground storage gas and has sharply reduced the amount of gas it can deliver from storage each day.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Columbia Gas, the state's largest gas utility, said the situation was holding steady.

“Pressures are holding solid throughout the state,” spokesman William Chaddock said. Columbia Gas serves 56 counties with more than one million customers.

Reports from the three other large gas companies in Ohio—DP&L, CG&E, and East Ohio Gas Co.—were much the same.

“I guess our guys are keeping up with it (demand),” said East Ohio spokesman David Talbott.

A spokesman for DP&L said that company would abide by the Columbia

Transmission directive and continue on its present curtailment schedule.

In another development, Columbia Gas was investigating the possibility of receiving a shipment of liquefied natural gas that has been located in Alaska. A spokesman said the firm has asked Secretary of the Treasury Michael Blumenthal to waive regulations requiring the use of U.S.-registered tankers for transporting the gas between two American ports—from Kenai, Alaska to Everett, Mass.

“We found there were no U.S. ships available to bring the gas through the Panama Canal to the eastern seaboard,” said spokesman Bruce Quayle.

Even if the waiver is granted, another Columbia spokesman said the gas would not be available until the winter heating season is nearly over.

State administrators credited the closing of industries and nonessential businesses throughout the state over the weekend and cooperation by residential users in turning their thermostats down for preventing a disaster.

The News In Brief

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Two killers sentenced to the electric chair want to be married in Florida's first Death Row wedding, not for themselves but for the sake of their child.

Jessie Tafero says he is prepared for the worst — the possibility that his and Sonia Jacobs' appeals will fail and they will be executed. That would orphan their daughter, Christina, born out of wedlock 21 months ago.

“Sonia and I are applying now to be married. Here, just about anywhere we can, so our marital status will be completely legitimized for everybody's questions ... We have a child,” Tafero said in a copyright story in today's St. Petersburg Times.

CINCINNATI (AP) — The defense indicated it will continue to attempt to convince a jury that Hustler magazine does not offend local community standards as the trial of publisher Larry Flynt and three others opens its third week today.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Court Judge William S. Morrissey Friday denied a motion to dismiss charges of pandering obscenity and engaging in organized crime against Flynt and three employees. He also ruled that six similar magazines cannot be entered as evidence in the case.

The motion to dismiss charges came after the prosecution had rested its case against Flynt, his wife Althea Leasure, his brother Jimmy and Al Van Schaik.

CINCINNATI (AP) — John Battaglia, general manager of Latonia for the past five years, will become director of operations at River Downs in Cincinnati effective Tuesday.

Storm victim

Godek and her friends were forced to look for shelter. They kept warm, thanks to semi tractor-trailer truck drivers, who welcomed them into their warm cabs.

The last she saw of her car, it was covered to the roof with snow.

Mrs. Godek and her friends were transferred to the army at 2 p.m. Friday. They stayed there for nearly 48 hours. “Everybody has been so nice,” she said.

Sunday afternoon, her husband completed his journey from Dayton to pick her up. He was forced to drive to U.S. 68 and then up U.S. 22 to reach Washington C.H.

While Mrs. Godek and her husband were leaving the army for the return trip to Dayton, a Dayton truck driver was arriving. He was suffering from frostbitten feet.

The trucker had been at the National Guard since Friday, but on Sunday he decided to see if his truck, abandoned along U.S. 22, would start. The long walk in the snow almost resulted in crippling injuries.

A pan of water was drawn to thaw out his feet. Although the injuries were not believed serious, he was transported by ambulance to Fayette County Memorial Hospital.

Frostbite, with the possible exception of loneliness experienced by persons far from loved ones, was the most common malady suffered by the estimated 200 to 300 persons seeking emergency shelter at the army over the weekend.

Ohio solons to eye fuel crisis cause

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's lawmakers are sure to launch an investigation soon into causes of the state's unprecedented winter fuel crisis and, inevitably, try to fix blame.

The Senate and House are scheduled to convene Tuesday to continue their regular 1976 session which recessed Jan. 12 for the presidential inauguration.

Since that time, they have been in special session, on call if Gov. James A. Rhodes needed emergency legislation to deal with the crisis. He requested none.

Senate Majority Leader Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, along with some Republicans, already have called for committees to investigate the fuel shortage.

With the severe winter weather a threat to normal operations of the legislature, as it has been to almost everything else in Ohio, leaders plan this week to get committee hearings under way for the first time since the legislature convened Jan. 3.

Fuel cutback orders keep workers home

By The Associated Press
Strict orders for cutbacks in fuel consumption kept millions of workers and students at home today in the frigid East and Midwest but also helped guarantee that their homes will stay warm.

The Federal Power Commission said that because at least 11 states made plans to close businesses and schools to save fuel, and four major natural gas pipeline systems reported slight increases in supplies Sunday, the threat of interrupted gas service to homes had receded.

But more than 1.5 million people were out of work — one million of these in Ohio — and thousands of schools were closed because of the strain on fuel supplies, especially natural gas, during this winter's wicked cold spells.

In Buffalo, N.Y., hardest-hit city in the nation, at least eight persons perished in the blizzard there, including seven found dead in their cars.

Woman ordained

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Doris Mote—too late to be a pathfinder but still very much a pioneer in her church—on Saturday became the second woman to be ordained as an Episcopal priest in Ohio.

Fifty-nine persons were arraigned Sunday on charges connected with looting stores during the paralyzing storm.

A storm brought snow and sleet to the South, from central Texas to Georgia, Sunday and early today. Heavy snow fell in Texas and Louisiana — four inches at Gainesville and Mineral Wells, Tex. — and lesser amounts were recorded in Selma, Ala., Plains, Ga., and parts of northwest Florida.

In most areas, the forecast called for at least two more days of very cold weather, perhaps a few degrees warmer than during the weekend.

Both houses of Congress scheduled sessions today on an emergency natural gas bill proposed by the White House. The bill would enable President Carter to order gas transferred from one pipeline company to another to get it to the most desperate areas.

Senate leaders said a vote was possible today and likely by Tuesday unless attempts to amend the bill slow

Department eyes Ohio joblessness

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state development department said Sunday an estimated one million persons, one quarter of Ohio's labor force, would be out of work this week because of the weather-related energy crisis.

Spokesman Ken Drum said the projection comes from analysis of figures on industrial and commercial firms ordered to close to conserve natural gas.

He said department analysis shows 400,000 of 1.3 million industrial workers are off the job, temporarily laid off when major gas utilities directed industries served by them to operate only at maintenance levels.

Drum said an additional 150,000 employees of educational institutions are projected to be out of work because of the combination of subzero temperatures and natural gas shortages.

The remaining 450,000 workers in the total estimate were projected after gas utilities ordered small commercial businesses using natural gas to curtail operations. Drum said retail stores, restaurants and other commercial enterprises are included in that category.

It down. The House Commerce Committee planned to work on the bill today so it could be ready for floor action Tuesday.

Carter traveled Sunday to Pittsburgh to tour a turbine plant that was partially shut down by the cold and the fuel shortage.

“I don't think there's any doubt that there is a natural gas shortage in this area,” the President said. “But nationwide, if we could distribute the gas to exactly where it was needed, we would probably have enough.”

Pennsylvania was among the states in which distributors had said they might have to cut off gas delivery to residences because of dwindling supplies and failing pressure.

They already had stopped servicing hundreds of businesses, and about 90,000 workers have been laid off. All state schools have been closed since Thursday, keeping more than 2.6 million pupils at home.

But a Civil Defense spokesman said Sunday night in Harrisburg that the residential cutoff no longer was imminent.

Gov. Milton Shapp scheduled a meeting for today to consider reopening the schools Tuesday.

In New York, which like Pennsylvania has been declared eligible for federal disaster relief, at least half a million schoolchildren will be off all this week. Gov. Hugh Carey closed every school heated by natural gas — 1,309 public schools and an unknown number of private schools.

A spokesman for the State Public Service Commission said that temperatures slightly above predictions had eased the supply shortage, but about 200,000 upstate New Yorkers were out of work because of an almost total ban imposed by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. on the use of natural gas for industry.

The utility said the restrictions might last all week.

Activity in Buffalo, N.Y., was still far from normal. National Guardsmen, city workers and private contractors worked all day to clear snow from streets and highways, but one official said Sunday night, “We're about to lose the battle.”

All but emergency travel has been banned in the city of 1.4 million: hundreds of cars, abandoned in snowdrifts, hindered the movement of emergency and supply vehicles.

Officials feared that they might find more bodies in cars, in addition to the seven already found in the Buffalo area since a blizzard struck Friday.

More blowing, drifting snow was predicted for Buffalo today. More than 157 inches of snow has fallen already this winter. In a normal winter 44 inches might be expected by now.

On a lighter note, three reindeer from the Buffalo Zoo took advantage of giant drifts Sunday to spring over their fence for an hour or so. All were sighted within a mile and brought in after being tranquilized.

In New Jersey, energy-saving procedures went into effect today under an emergency decree from Gov. Brendan Byrne. Stores, bars, restaurants, offices and recreation facilities were ordered onto a 40-hour week until further notice — regardless of what fuel is used.

Industrial use of natural gas was cut off last week in New Jersey, and Public Utility Commission president Joel Jacobsen said Sunday that business curtailments might raise the number of idled workers to 750,000.

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll scheduled a meeting for today to outline the implementation of a four-day week for “nonessential” state employees. But in West Virginia, Gov. Jay Rockefeller said state employees would remain on the job to help solve energy problems.

Indiana officials decided to ask President Carter to make their state eligible for aid. Govs. James Rhodes of Ohio and James Thompson of Illinois asked Carter to call a governors' meeting aimed at redirecting the nation's energy priorities toward heavier use of coal.

Ohio has reported one million workers — 25 per cent of the work force — laid off because of the weather and its consequences.

The Mississippi River was still virtually barren of traffic because of ice blockades, according to the Coast Guard office in St. Louis.

Spot shortages of fuels other than natural gas cropped up all weekend, sometimes due to delivery problems. North Carolina officials said so many businesses had switched from natural gas to fuel oil that the oil was in short supply.

Ohio has reported one million workers — 25 per cent of the work force — laid off because of the weather and its consequences.

The Mississippi River was still virtually barren of traffic because of ice blockades, according to the Coast Guard office in St. Louis.

Spot shortages of fuels other than natural gas cropped up all weekend, sometimes due to delivery problems. North Carolina officials said so many businesses had switched from natural gas to fuel oil that the oil was in short supply.

It down. The House Commerce Committee planned to work on the bill today so it could be ready for floor action Tuesday.

Carter traveled Sunday to Pittsburgh to tour a turbine plant that was partially shut down by the cold and the fuel shortage.

“I don't think there's any doubt that there is a natural gas shortage in this area,” the President said. “But nationwide, if we could distribute the gas to exactly where it was needed, we would probably have enough.”

Pennsylvania was among the states in which distributors had said they might have to cut off gas delivery to residences because of dwindling supplies and failing pressure.

They already had stopped servicing hundreds of businesses, and about 90,000 workers have been laid off. All state schools have been closed since Thursday, keeping more than 2.6 million pupils at home.

But a Civil Defense spokesman said Sunday night in Harrisburg that the residential cutoff no longer was imminent.

Gov. Milton Shapp scheduled a meeting for today to consider reopening the schools Tuesday.

In New York, which like Pennsylvania has been declared eligible for federal disaster relief, at least half a million schoolchildren will be off all this week. Gov. Hugh Carey closed every school heated by natural gas — 1,309 public schools and an unknown number of private schools.

A spokesman for the State Public Service Commission said that temperatures slightly above predictions had eased the supply shortage, but about 200,000 upstate New Yorkers were out of work because of an almost total ban imposed by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. on the use of natural gas for industry.

The utility said the restrictions might last all week.

Activity in Buffalo, N.Y., was still far from normal. National Guardsmen, city workers and private contractors worked all day to clear snow from streets and highways, but one official said Sunday night, “We're about to lose the battle.”

All but emergency travel has been banned in the city of 1.4 million: hundreds of cars, abandoned in snowdrifts, hindered the movement of emergency and supply vehicles.

Officials feared that they might find more bodies in cars, in addition to the seven already found in the Buffalo area since a blizzard struck Friday.

More blowing, drifting snow was predicted for Buffalo today. More than 157 inches of snow has fallen already this winter. In a normal winter 44 inches might be expected by now.

On a lighter note, three reindeer from the Buffalo Zoo took advantage of giant drifts Sunday to spring over their fence for an hour or so. All were sighted within a mile and brought in after being tranquilized.

In New Jersey, energy-saving procedures went into effect today under an emergency decree from Gov. Brendan Byrne. Stores, bars, restaurants, offices and recreation facilities were ordered onto a 40-hour week until further notice — regardless of what fuel is used.

Industrial use of natural gas was cut off last week in New Jersey, and Public Utility Commission president Joel Jacobsen said Sunday that business curtailments might raise the number of idled workers to 750,000.

Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll scheduled a meeting for today to outline the implementation of a four-day week for “nonessential” state employees. But in West Virginia, Gov. Jay Rockefeller said state employees would remain on the job to help solve energy problems.

Indiana officials decided to ask President Carter to make their state eligible for aid. Govs. James Rhodes of Ohio and James Thompson of Illinois asked Carter to call a governors' meeting aimed at redirect

Cooperation key in local rescue efforts

COOPERATION WAS THE KEY word in Fayette County over the weekend as residents continued attempts to dig out from a paralyzing blizzard which swept through the area

Friday. Here a motorist shared his jumper cables to help start a disabled auto on East Street.

That old saying "you can't do anything about the weather but talk about it" just isn't true as far as Fayette County is concerned.

Local agencies, businesses, civic and church organizations have displayed an overwhelming spirit of cooperation in efforts to assist persons victimized by a paralyzing blizzard which swept through the county early Friday.

"You can't believe how people are offering to help," said Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson.

Area farmers are volunteering services of heavy equipment to remove stranded vehicles, rural residents are permitting stranded travelers to stay in their homes until road conditions improve, persons are providing their neighbors with vital supplies, organizations and individuals are donating money, clothing and blankets, and restaurants and grocery stores are donating food to the hungry. The list goes on and on.

"The overall response has been tremendous," said Raldon M. Smith, director of the Fayette County Disaster Services Agency. "Neighbors are helping neighbors; everyone is helping."

Over 100 persons used the facilities at the Ohio National Guard Armory on S. Fayette Street over the weekend. The displaced persons, some of whom have been evacuated from their homes here, need three square meals per day and warm clothing. But that's been no problem.

Area restaurants have donated meals and food supplies to stranded persons at the armory while local groceries have also provided all sorts of supplies, including formula for infants, diapers and baby bottles. "These people really deserve to be commended," said Sgt. First Class Fred West, head cook in the local Ohio Army National Guard unit. West has two cooks on his staff, but they have been assisted by local women in preparing food and hot coffee for the stranded.

Church organizations and individuals

have responded to requests for clothing, blankets and pillows to place in the emergency shelter established at the armory. "The response for clothing has been tremendous," said Mrs. Lois Goodson, a volunteer worker at the armory.

Reading material has also been donated to occupy the time of persons stranded at the armory. "We've even had television sets, toys, games and puzzles donated or loaned," Smith said.

One local church furnished a bus from its fleet to transport stranded persons to a local restaurant for food.

The Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross and the local Salvation Army are assuming financial responsibility for food served at the armory and for all food packages prepared for emergency delivery by Ohio National Guard helicopters.

The local Red Cross chapter Sunday received a large shipment of food from the state organization's emergency food storage center in Columbus.

Local officials have also been able to cut bureaucratic red tape in obtaining needed equipment.

Sheriff Thompson said the Ohio Department of Transportation was scheduled to deliver two snow blowers from Port Columbus Airport Sunday night to be used by area departments in clearing drifts from roads.

Sheriff Thompson said Larry Camp, a former sheriff's deputy, worked all weekend with a huge four-wheel drive tractor answering emergency calls which officers could not reach because of road conditions.

Camp, now an auxiliary deputy, assisted local authorities on routine police work, removed numerous autos which had been become stranded on snow-clogged roads in southern Fayette County and assisted in evacuating persons to the emergency shelter at the armory.

Krieger Equipment, Inc., Jeffersonville, also volunteered heavy machinery to remove disabled autos and assist area road departments in clearing drifts from Ohio 41-N in northern Fayette County.

Volunteers from the Fayette County Life Squad staffed a small medical station at the armory and members of local Civil Air Patrol Squadron assisted disaster services agency personnel.

A true spirit of cooperation emerged between local agencies.

"We've received wonderful cooperation all the way around," Smith said. "It's the best demonstration of cooperation that I've seen since I've been here and that's 12 years," Smith said.

Capt. Larry Hott, commander of the local Ohio Army National Guard unit, commended area law enforcement agencies, area road and highway departments and other agencies involved in weekend rescue missions.

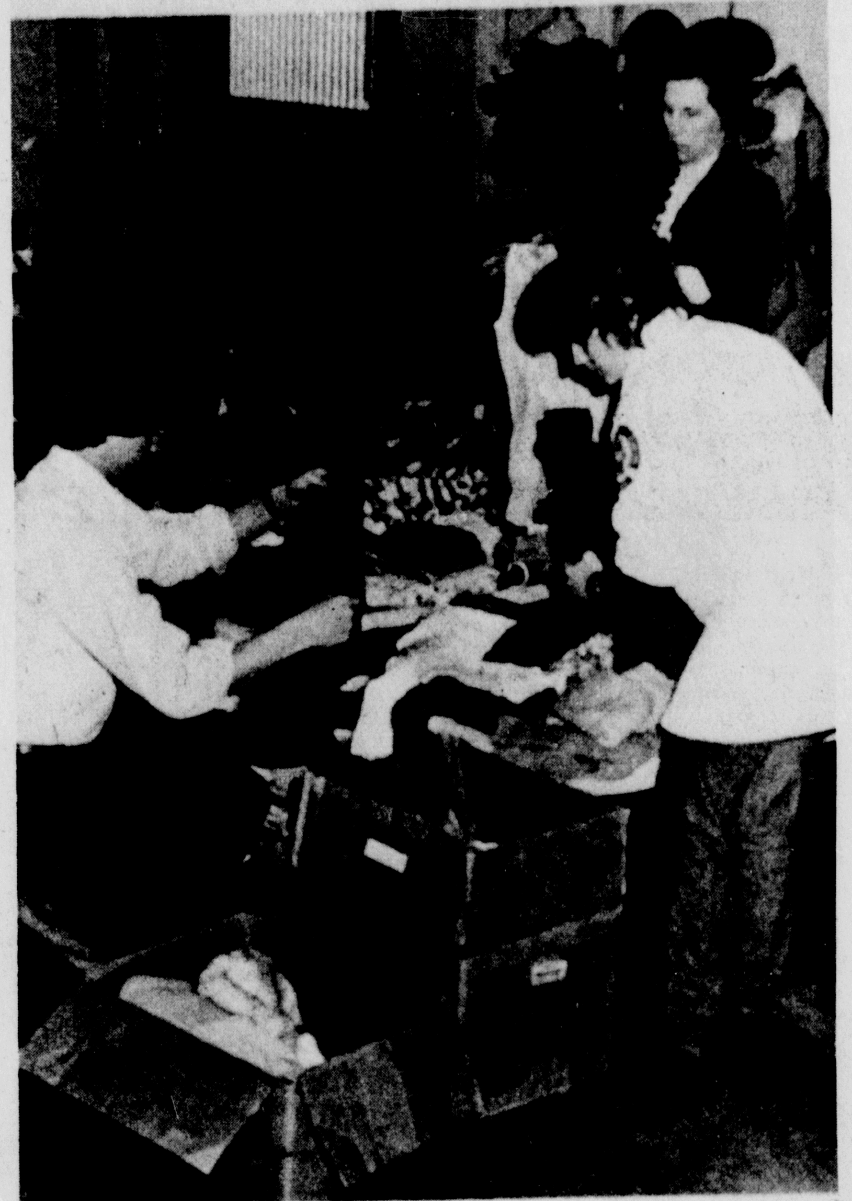

"It's the best cooperation I've seen anywhere. Everybody's doing a helluva job," Hott said.

Hott, who is also a Washington C.H. police officer, has been coordinating local rescue and evacuation efforts since Friday.

"They're (the local National Guard unit) doing an outstanding job," said Major Herbert B. Eagon, of Columbus, commander of the First Battalion 166th Infantry. "I have all the respect in the world for Capt. Hott and I know he's got things under control."

But, as can be expected, the emergency evacuation of persons and delivery of food by Ohio National Guard helicopters is being abused.

An auxiliary Fayette County sheriff's deputy reported he had received a telephone call from a local resident requesting that the Ohio National Guard helicopter pick up his daughter and fly her to Mount Sterling for her wedding, which has been delayed because of weather conditions.

"He said it was an emergency, but I told him that our priorities for emergencies conflicted," the auxiliary deputy said. "The man told me his daughter had been crying her eyes out since Friday," he said.

"Some of the calls are ridiculous," Smith said. "One person who lived a city block from a grocery called and wanted to know if the chopper could bring her cigarettes, dog food and some Pepsi Cola."

Local officials also said a Washington C.H. resident asked for helicopter delivery of two meals ordered from a Columbus Avenue restaurant.

Newsman joins guardsmen on Bookwalter grocery delivery

Editor's note—Record-Herald City Editor Phil Lewis accompanied U.S. Army National guardsmen on an emergency food run to Bookwalter Sunday afternoon that turned into a seven-hour trip through snow-covered Fayette County.

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor

I borrowed a heavy coat, a good pair of gloves, and an army hat complete with earmuffs. I was told that I would need them. They were right.

Capt. Larry Hott, commander of the local Ohio Army National Guard unit, had just given me permission to ride along on a food run to Bookwalter in an armored personnel carrier. I was told it would be a cold trip in the heatless, treaded vehicle.

Over 1,000 pounds of groceries were stacked inside the PC (short for personnel carrier) for the Bookwalter trip. The manager of a small market in Bookwalter had contacted the Fayette County Disaster Services Agency saying that some 50 or 60 families were in need of food.

Bags of flour, 200 loaves of bread, 50 gallons of milk, 300 pounds of potatoes, 25 dozen eggs, and five cases of baby food were among the groceries provided by the Red Cross.

National guardsman Ed Summers and Fayette County sheriff's auxiliary deputy Don Campbell along with myself squeezed into the passenger compartment amid the groceries.

Guardsmen Neil Shirkey was the driver and guardsman Rick Massie helped with the navigation of the vehicle. Both stuck their heads through two portholes in the top of the PC that greatly resembled a green cracker box.

Shirkey fired up the vehicle which he steered with two levers and we headed up Ohio 41-N to Bookwalter at 4:30 p.m.

From the state road, Shirkey turned the PC up Prairie Road, across Wesley Chapel Road, and to the Reid Road.

The ride was bumpy and, as promised, cold. The wind swept down the portholes into an icebox.

It took approximately 45 minutes to make the 15 mile trip to Bookwalter. On loose dirt, Shirkey said the vehicle would do about 50 miles per hour, but on the snowy pavement 25 miles per hour was tops. Shirkey used to pilot similar vehicles in Korea.

The route to Bookwalter wasn't as snow-covered as was feared. A four-wheel drive truck reportedly could have made the trip. However, newly opened roads quickly drifted over again because of the high winds and the PC could plow over snow drifts.

Upon reaching Bookwalter, about 30 persons were on hand to unload the vehicle and take the food into Lefty Davis' grocery store.

I went in to warm my numb feet and talked to Davis.

He said he was running very low on food not to mention coffee and cigarettes. The last big delivery to his store was Monday, although he received milk and bread on Thursday before the blizzard hit.

The milk went fast, because many local families had babies and small children. The Bookwalter residents were happy to get the food, but a lack of fuel oil was causing just as much concern.

"I'm about out of fuel oil. There's only a little left in the tank," Charles Gillispie, an area resident, said. "I have a wood stove, but only enough wood to last till Wednesday."

The PC left Bookwalter at 5:30 p.m. for what was thought to be a short run to the Jim Mongold residence on the Cars-Mills-Jamestown Road. He was also low on groceries.

We traveled the Harold Road to Ohio 729 where the drifting snow would prevent anything besides the PC from breaking through. Massie reported that drifts on Ohio 729 were 10 to 12 feet high in spots. I was unable to see out the PC, because there were no windows in the three-foot high compartment we were traveling in. However, I had complete faith in Shirkey's driving ability.

Three boxes of groceries were dropped at the Mongold home and we continued down Ohio 729 to the Ernie Jenks residence to pick up 15 gallons of gas.

A pickup truck with four persons in it tried to follow, but got hung up in a snow drift. Summers and Massie hooked a chain to the pickup and Shirkey pulled them free.

The vehicle was turned to Jeffersonville, because Deputy Campbell had received word that a family may have to be evacuated from their home which was low on fuel oil.

We stopped at Jeff Royal Blue market in Jeffersonville to warm up and allow Campbell to make a phone call to the Sheriff's office. The manager, Danny Snyder, let us in and offered free food and drink. My feet were numb and I welcomed the 15-minute break from the PC.

No one needed to be evacuated, but

pounds of food was taken to the grocery store in Bookwalter to be distributed to an estimated 50 families.

Robert Fugate had five bags of groceries to deliver to his parents house on the Upper Jamestown Road. He had dug his way out of the home Saturday, but drifting snow had made it impossible to return.

We plodded nearly 10 miles to the

Thurman Fugate residence, but had to stop 100 yards from the home because of the Rattlesnake Creek bridge. The 14-ton vehicle would have been too heavy to attempt a crossing.

The Fugates had not been able to replenish their food supply since Wednesday.

Robert Fugate, Summers, Massie, and myself carried the groceries over a huge drift in front of the Fugate home and then climbed back in the PC for a return to Jeffersonville.

We stopped at a Sohio station for more gas and decided to head back to Washington C.H. via I-71 and U.S. 35. Fugate offered to follow the PC down the interstate with his emergency flashers on. Deputy Campbell and myself rode in the car which was unbelievably more comfortable than the PC.

Although we had stopped several times to warm up, I was very cold and could not see how Shirkey and Massie could stand to ride with their heads out the porthole.

We pulled into the Union 76 restaurant for food, which was free of charge, and Deputy Campbell again called the Sheriff's Department. It was 9 p.m.

Campbell reported that there was an elderly couple nearby that was without electricity and Junior Harrison at the truck stop requested a ride home. He had walked out to the truck stop to get groceries earlier.

We headed down the Allen Road through Octa. Drifts were so high that the PC was occasionally at a 45-degree angle. Shirkey cut across a cornfield to avoid several drifts.

When the PC reached the Milledgeville-Octa Road, it met a snowplow and a national guard truck which was attempting to clear a path to the John Minton home to evacuate several people.

It would have taken the plow hours to cut through the drifts. It was decided that the PC would pick the people up.

We reached the Minton residence and loaded Clarence and Wanda Howard, Donald and Barbara Beach, and a dog into the PC. They had been staying with the Mintons for the past three days after they had run out of fuel oil. The Minton's had heat, but the food supply was running low.

We took a 15-minute ride back to the National Guard truck and the snowplow and dropped the passengers off for a more comfortable ride to town. Eight people barely fit in the compartment of the PC. Summers and myself sat on a round disk used to mount a mortar in less peaceful times. It was like sitting on a block of ice.

We continued down the Milledgeville-Octa Road to U.S. 35 in search of the elderly couple without electricity.

Richard Craig gave us gasoline at his home to keep the PC running and Mrs. Craig prepared coffee and hot tea. Deputy Campbell asked the Craigs to put up the elderly couple if they could be persuaded to leave their home. They said they would be glad to accommodate.

However, Campbell called the sheriff's office and was informed the elderly couple was safe and had enough provisions to last until Wednesday. Then, I received the good news that we were heading back to Washington C.H. We went down U.S. 35 to the Bloomingburg-New Holland Road and then down Ohio 41.

At 11:30 p.m., we arrived at the sheriff's office and I climbed out of the PC for the last time, hopefully.

Governors request coal energy policy

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes and Illinois Gov. James Thompson have asked President Carter to call together the chief executives of states suffering from the energy shortage to work toward a national coal-based energy policy.

Their request was announced Sunday during a cabinet meeting here that was opened to the news media. Cabinet officers outlined the steps being taken to alleviate the energy crisis.

The Department of Transportation assigned priorities to special assistance, placing health and safety at the top of the list, followed by delivery of fuel and milk.

Rhodes was told in meetings with representatives of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and Ohio Milk Producers Federation that some milk had to be dumped at farms because trucks were unable to get through to pick up milk supplies.

Meanwhile, a major supplier of natural gas in Ohio and six other states directed the utilities it serves to continue gas cutbacks to all but residential and other high priority customers.

Columbia Gas Transmission Corp. said Sunday it was continuing its cutback in gas supplies to over 80 gas companies in its seven-state service area at least until Saturday.

The announcement means that the three major utilities supplied by the firm—Columbia Gas of Ohio, Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co. and Dayton Power & Light Co.—were forced to continue requirements that most industries and commercial firms maintain operations at a minimum level.

Conditions of major arteries improved over the weekend, but many secondary roads remained snowbound. Nearly 500 National Guardsmen using more than 150 pieces of equipment ranging from jeeps and helicopters to tanks, were deployed in 42 counties.

Guardsmen were being used to evacuate stranded motorists and people without food or heat to places of shelters. Many units were helping state, county and municipal workers in clearing clogged roads. Guard aviators flew dozens of medical evacuation missions.

On Sunday Gov. Rhodes ordered a statewide effort to contact elderly and handicapped persons who might have trouble because of the severe weather. The effort was being coordinated by the Commission on Aging, Rehabilitation Services Commission and the welfare department.

"If we wait for people in difficulties to make their own calls for help, it might be too late," Rhodes said. "We must make an effort to reach out to them, especially those with limitations due to age or physical impairment."

In other energy-related developments:

—State Transportation Director David Weir announced that load limits on transportation of fuel oil and gasoline have been raised temporarily to five tons. He noted that Ashland Oil of Kentucky, which supplies up to 40 per cent of its output to Ohio, had a backlog of 700 loads of oil as a result of Friday's snowstorm.

—Ohio educators called for "double use of schools buildings" heated by fuels other than natural gas during the natural gas crisis which has forced more than 50 per cent of the state's public schools to close.

—The state development department said an estimated one million persons, one quarter of Ohio's labor force, would be out of work this week because of the energy situation.

Very versatile crepes

MOLASSES-FLAVORED crepes are filled with a delicious combination of sour cream and poached apple slices.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

LAST YEAR everyone dunked (bread cubes, meat chunks, even cake wedges). Fondue-making was the rage!

This year, the "in" cooking action is rolling because everyone's having a go at crepes.

Like many cooking fads, crepe-making can involve a special appliance. But it needn't—I plucked my crepe-maker (a two-egg skillet) right off the kitchen pegboard.

Basic Instructions

To make it produce perfect crepes I observe three rules:

1. Whether making them over a flame or an electric unit, I'm careful to set the control neither too high (they'll burn) nor too low (they won't brown). Once I found the right temperature, I noted it on the control knob with a dab of nail polish. Result: Perfect crepes every time.
2. Before cooking each crepe, I wipe the pan with an oil-saturated paper towel.
3. I'm careful not to use too much batter. From force of pancake-making habit, there's a tendency to overdo. The facts are: Two tablespoons of batter that is the consistency of heavy cream are enough. Spoon them into the center of pan, then tilt the pan, turning it rapidly to spread the batter evenly.

Crepes should be cooked about 30 seconds on the first side, or until the under-surface is browned to your liking and dry enough to part from the pan with ease. Give the second side about 20 seconds to set — it won't be as beautifully browned as side one, but that's not important. Spoon the filling of your choice on the second side and no one will be the wiser.

Cook Book Help

If you decide to get into crepe-making in a big way, you'll find recipes galore for breakfast, lunch and dessert crepes in Sylvia Schur's excellent "Crepe Cookbook" (Fawcett). Ms. Schur's book lists 25 basic recipes for crepe batter. This is my favorite:

BLENDER CREPES

- 1 cup milk
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter

In blender container, combine milk, eggs, flour and salt. Whirl until just combined. Melt butter in crepe pan. Pour into batter. Let batter stand at least 30 minutes before cooking.

Makes 12 to 16 crepes.

Crepes fillings vary. For a nice luncheon entree, try:

CHICKEN FILLING

- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 (1 1/2-ounce) cans chunky chicken spread
- 1 (10-ounce) package frozen broccoli, cooked according to package directions
- 10 crepes
- 1 (11-ounce) can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
- 1-3rd cup dry white wine

Preheat oven to 350 F.

In a saucepan over low heat, melt butter; saute onions 5 minutes. Stir in chicken spread.

heaping tablespoons of chicken mixture over broccoli.

Fold sides of crepe over the broccoli-chicken filling. Repeat until all crepes are filled. Place on a heatproof serving platter and bake 5 minutes.

Meanwhile prepare cheese sauce by heating soup and wine in a saucepan over medium high heat. Bring to a boil; lower heat. Bring to a boil; lower heat; simmer 5 minutes. Serve over crepes. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

There's no end to the fabulous desserts you can make with crepes. I love filling them with a warmed mixture of ricotta cheese and crushed strawberries. The combination's absolutely delicious and caloriewise it's not lethal.

Another super suggestion: Whip up Whole Wheat Crepes (the recipe follows), then spoon flavored sour cream and hot Apple Molasses Filling over them: roll and serve:

WHOLE WHEAT CREPES

- 3 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 tablespoons salad oil
- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon almond extract
- 4 tablespoons unsulphured molasses, divided
- 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- 2 tablespoons almond flavored liqueur
- 1 cup sour cream Apple Molasses Filling

In blender, combine eggs, milk, water, oil, flour, salt, almond extract and 2 tablespoons molasses; mix until smooth. Stir batter occasionally if flour starts to settle. Batter need not stand before cooking.

Cook crepes, keeping warm until all are done.

Blend remaining 2 tablespoons molasses, confectioners' sugar and liqueur, into sour cream. Spread a teaspoon of sour cream mixture on each crepe. Arrange 2 to 3 apple slices from Apple Filling (recipe follows) over sour cream. Roll crepe. Top with additional sour cream and sliced almonds.

Makes 16 crepes.

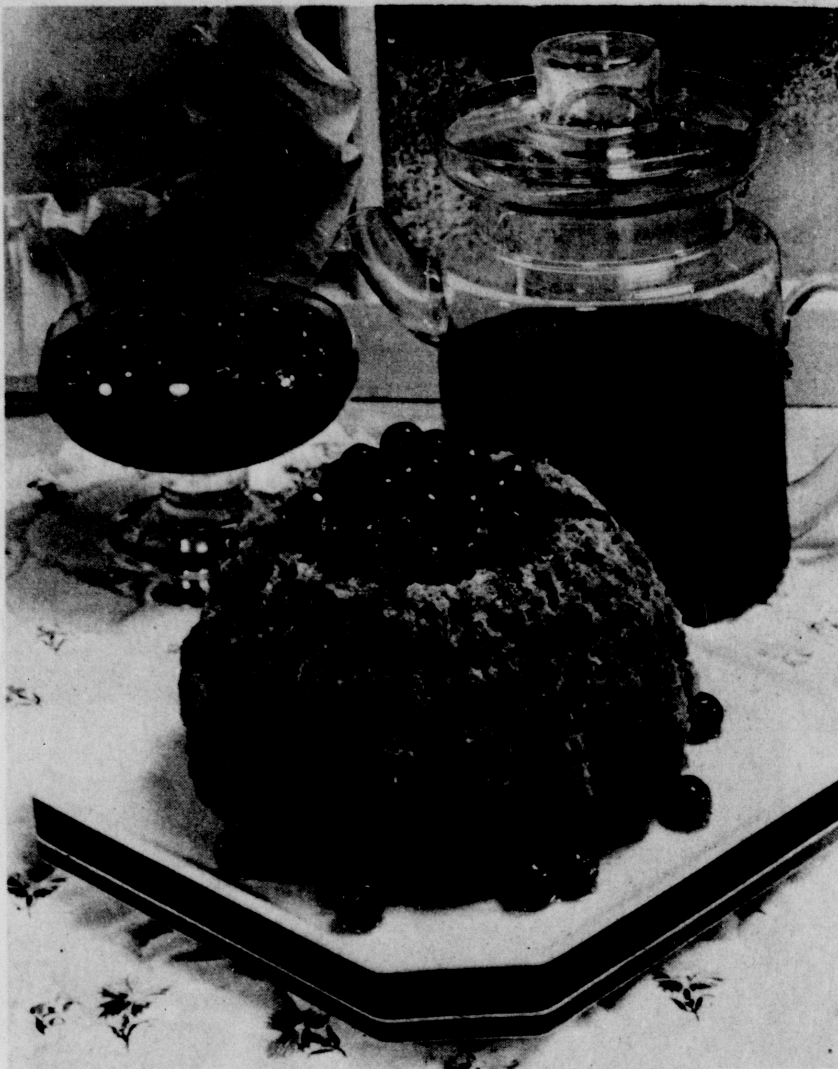

APPLE MOLASSES FILLING

- 2 cups apple slices
- 1 tablespoon unsulphured molasses
- 1 tablespoon almond-flavored liqueur

Poach apple slices in molasses and liqueur over very gentle heat.

The economical Lancasterian system of schools, which employed older students, or monitors, to assist in teaching, was introduced in Ohio in 1816, only a decade after its inauguration in the United States. Such a school was established in Chillicothe in 1816 where books were furnished and the cost for each pupil was only $2.50 a quarter.—AP

When the railroads came to Ohio in the 1830's they played an unimportant part in the location of towns, for most of them had already been laid out by that time, and towns and cities determined the location of the railroads rather than the other way around.—AP

BRAN CRANBERRY CROWN, warm and welcoming, is a dessert with many benefits—flavor, texture and healthful goodness. Bran cereal is an important source of food fiber which should be included in our daily diet.

Hearty bran desserts help warm a winter's night

What could be cozier on a cold winter evening than a warm dessert, rich and filling and somehow comforting against the chill of the season? Bran Cranberry Crown, a classic steamed pudding, is one of the nicest warm desserts you can serve your family.

But don't be timid about trying a steamed pudding. Steaming is a simple technique. Prepare the batter and turn into a greased mold; cook in a large kettle of boiling water until done, cool and unmold. You can do this cake-like pudding, made with Kellogg's All-Bran cereal or Bran Buds cereal early in the day and reheat it in the oven just before serving.

Bran cereal gives this steamed pudding a distinctive sweet and nutty bran flavor that goes so well with the tanginess of fresh cranberries.

There's another excellent reason for making a dessert with bran cereal. Bran cereal is one of the finest sources of natural food fiber. Some medical researchers believe that inadequate fiber in our diets is a factor in some of the common "diseases of civilization," such as cancer of the colon and rectum, heart disease and diverticulitis.

BRAN CRANBERRY CROWN

- 1/2 cup regular margarine or butter
- 2 teaspoons grated orange rind
- 1 cup packed dark brown sugar
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 1/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 tablespoons brandy or orange juice
- 1 cup wheat bran cereal
- 1 cup chopped cranberries

In large bowl cream margarine, orange rind and brown sugar. Beat in egg yolks. Mix flour, baking powder, salt and nutmeg; blend into creamed mixture alternately with milk and brandy. Stir in wheat bran cereal and cranberries. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into cereal mixture. Turn into greased and sugared 6-cup pudding mold, cover, and place on a rack in a large kettle. Add boiling water to come half-way up side of mold. Cover kettle and bring water to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 2 to 2 1/2 hours, or until cake tester inserted in center of pudding comes out clean. Remove mold from kettle, cool 10 minutes, unmold and serve with Cranberry Brandy Sauce.

YIELD: 10 to 12 servings.

CRANBERRY BRANDY SAUCE

- 2 cups cranberries
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon brandy or orange juice

In large saucepan mix cranberries, sugar and water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until sugar dissolves. Bring to a boil and cook until cranberries begin to pop. Remove from heat and stir in brandy. Serve warm.

CHEWY BRAN MERINGUE DESSERT

- 3/4 cup wheat bran cereal
- 1/4 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup chopped pitted dates
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 4 egg whites
- 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup sugar

Mix wheat bran cereal and flour. Toss 1-3 cereal mixture with dates and walnuts. Set aside. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar and salt until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar; beat until very stiff. Fold in cereal mixture and date mixture. Turn into greased 9-inch pie plate. Bake in 350 degrees F. oven 25 minutes. Serve warm, cut in wedges, with Orange Cream Topping.

YIELD: 8 servings.

ORANGE CREAM TOPPING

- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 3 tablespoons orange juice
- 1/2 cup sifted confectioners' sugar

Beat all ingredients in small bowl until smooth.

A new member, Mrs. Ronald Burke, was welcomed and music director W. Warren Parker was gratified with the musical progress toward mastery of the Faure "Requiem" and shorter sacred and secular pieces for the concert of March 13.

The Society will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Case home, 330 Jupiter St., and enrollment is open to all vocal musicians.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1977

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

Mars extremely beneficent. You now have a chance to cash in on good will, to increase your prestige.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

This day's progress could be furthered by joining forces with someone outside your normal circle — but with similar interests, of course.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Avoid present tendencies toward lethargy and inertia. Self-discipline is one of your strongest traits. Stress it now.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Don't cross others without ample reason. It may be better to wait a bit before making decisions, give time for added factors to appear.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Get together with associates who share your interests to discuss ambitions, hopes, plans for the future, new ideas in general.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be cautious in dealing with associates. Some may urge you to make certain commitments against your better judgment. Don't allow yourself to be pressured.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Don't regard decisions made in the a.m. as final. Certain circumstances may necessitate revisions later in the day.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

A day calling for your best judgment. Don't take action in a tricky situation before you've heard the whole story, and DO try to see the viewpoint of associates.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Be ready for changes. Some surprising orders will be given regarding your duties and responsibilities. Maintain your balance and avoid extremes.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

A day for remaining in the background. Your hunches are correct, but this is not the time for taking direct action. Only through subtlety will you win the gains you desire.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

An unexpected discovery you make will prove profitable. Your clue lies in reading between the lines, carefully studying the "fine print."

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely genial and amiable individual. In fact, Aquarius is one of the friendliest Signs and represents that spirit of good will which is the essential quality of true friendship. You are endowed with extraordinary intuition, canny preception and understanding-at-a-glance. You have many interests in life; are adventurous, inventive, philosophical and a lover of the outdoors. You are talented, too, and could build a successful career out of science, music, painting or literature.

Three killed in accidents

By The Associated Press

At least three men were killed in traffic accidents on Ohio roadways this weekend, the Highway Patrol said. One of the deaths occurred near Van Wert when a 67-year-old Middle Point man was struck by a car while trying to dig his vehicle out of a snow drift, the Highway Patrol said.

The patrol keeps its weekend fatality count from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday.

The dead:

SUNDAY

SATURDAY

VAN WERT — Ray Crowe, 67, of Middle Point, struck by a car while trying to dig his auto out of a snow drift.

ASHTABULA — Hammie Banks, 59, Chicago, when his semi rig ran off the road and hit the rear of a parked semi on Interstate 90 about five miles east of Ashtabula.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS, PROBATE DIVISION, FAYETTE COUNTY, OHIO

Case No. 77-1-PA-380

IN THE MATTER OF THE ADOPTION OF: Shane Kelly Downs.

TO: Victor Allen Justice

You are hereby notified that on the 19th day of January, 1977, a petition for the adoption of Shane Kelly Justice, who was born on the 31st day of March, 1973, at Pike County, Kentucky, was filed in the Court of Common Pleas, Probate Division, Fayette County, Ohio, and that the hearing on said petition will be had before the Judge of said Court on the 9th day of March, 1977, at 10:00 o'clock A.M.

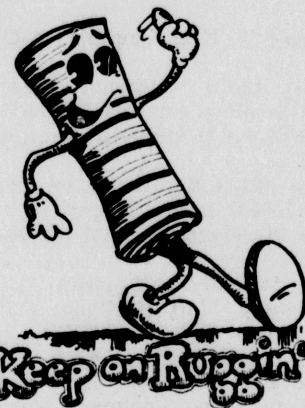

It is alleged in said petition that you, as father of said child, have wilfully failed to properly support and maintain said child for a period of more than two (2) years immediately preceding the filing of said petition.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Back in 1974, ABC had a nifty series, "Kolchak, the Night Stalker." It had fun with journalism. Tonight, CBS starts the other kind of newshawk series, "The Andros Targets."

It stars James Sutorius as Mike Andros, ace scribe for a New York newspaper, the Forum, whose motto is, "A Free Press, a Free Country." (My old paper's motto was, "Please Don't Feed the Staff." But I digress.)

Mike is the kind of investigative reporter who, when inspecting a file folder of incriminating documents guaranteed to Blow the Lid Off This Town, murmurs, "Whoa, this is powerful stuff."

But Mike isn't your typical hard-boiled old reporter. He's fairly young, his suit is pressed, no battered derby covers his head, no cigarette dangles from his lip and his trenchcoat is very clean. Unlike those ink-stained wretches who consider human beings as stories wrapped in skin, this newshawk has heart. He cares.

This is obvious when he tries to help a distraught father from Youngstown, Ohio. Pop thinks his daughter, a struggling young actress named

DeeDee, was a murder victim, not a suicide as New York cops say.

While we learn right off that DeeDee was involved in porn flicks, filched a certain file from her producer's office and mailed it to her actor boyfriend, Mike does not know this. At first.

But he quickly finds out, learns she was trying to go straight. He also uncovers a lurid extortion scam by a porn operation so mysterious not even The Mob knows who is bankrolling it.

Mike gets to the bottom of things with time-tested investigative techniques, including the asking of questions.

And when the porn producer's secretary won't let him in to grill the villain, Mike rolls out the big threat: "You tell him to read The Forum tomorrow, page one, column one..."

Well, faced with that, the producer, sneeringly played by F. Murray Abraham, relents. He speaks, he lies, but to no avail.

Twists and turns ensue, likewise some mighty gamey dialogue by the producer to DeeDee's father in one traumatic scene.

But finally, Mike, aided by a comely young rookie reporter (Pamela Reed), breaks the Big Story, even though he'd told one potential fink, a porn actress, "I don't buy information, Alice."

He don't buy a good script, either.

"The Andros Targets," an obvious 21-inch variation of "All the President's Men," was filmed in New York, rather than Hollywood. You can tell because the actors frown more.

New York is where TV producers go to show they can handle realistic drama. If tonight's opener is any indication, Mike Andros of the Forum better call the cops. His newspaper has been mugged.

St. John's Episcopal Church in Lancaster, built in 1848, has links with the Duke of Lancaster and the War of the Roses fought 400 years before in England. Plaster roses painted white, color of the Duke of York, are sprinkled over the church auditorium ceiling which is red, color of the House of Lancaster in that war.—AP

WASHINGTON REPORT

From

WILLIAM H. HARSHA

6th District, Ohio

Congress has more than enough incentive in 1977 to bring federal spending in line with federal income. President Carter's announced spending and tax plans add up to a deficit in the neighborhood of $75 billion, and that is a jump from last year's $65 billion-plus deficit.

Combined with a federal debt of almost $700 billion, these inflation-producing deficits offer yet another warning to another new Congress of the perils of failing to put the Federal Government's financial house in order.

For decades, Democrat-controlled Congresses have failed to heed this warning, even during Republican Presidential administrations. Obviously, the problem could be compounded with a Democrat in the White House. Nevertheless, as Congress sits down to decide on budget targets for the next fiscal year, matching expenditures with revenue should be the first priority.

I have joined in sponsoring an Amendment to the Constitution (House Joint Resolution 14) that would prevent the Federal Government from spending more money than it takes in, except in periods of national emergency, such as wartime.

The resolution also calls for repayment of the national debt over a period of 100 years at the rate of one per cent each year. We now pay over $40 billion in interest alone on that debt annually.

However involved the Constitutional Amendment process may be, it will have more staying power than a simple bill introduced for the same purpose. A law passed by one Congress can easily be changed by the succeeding one.

For 40 years, people in the highest levels of government have been talking about the problems we face when the Federal Government spends more than it takes in, year after year.

Even Franklin D. Roosevelt, in 1932, expressed concern about a balanced federal budget. He said, "Revenues must cover expenditures by one means or another. Any government, like any family, can, for a year, spend a little more than it earns. But, you and I both know that a continuation of that habit means the poorhouse."

President Dwight D. Eisenhower, in the strongest possible language, put it this way:

"We believe in paying as we go for what we do or get. I believe that continued deficit spending is immoral. Even in the short run, unnecessary deficit spending is just as wrong. Debasing our currency leads to inflation — the most cynical of all policies, for it strikes most cruelly at the retired, the pensioned, and those who have the least."

Longet set to appeal

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Claudine Longet, comforted by exhusband Andy Williams as she faced sentencing today for killing her lover, will definitely appeal if ordered to serve time in jail, her attorney says.

"Any jail time at all for her would be horrible," said Charles Weedman of Los Angeles, lawyer for the French-born entertainer.

"Quite frankly, she's wearied by all this," he said, "and I don't know if any appeal will be filed if there's no jail time. Of course, if a jail term is ordered, there is no question there will be an appeal."

Maximum penalty for Miss Longet's misdemeanor conviction is two years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

State District Court Judge George Lohr had a choice of sending her to state prison, the reformatory or the county jail, fining her or putting her on probation, Weedman said.

Skier Vladimir "Spider" Sabich died March 21, 1976, of a single bullet wound in the stomach from a .22 caliber pistol. Miss Longet said the gun went off accidentally while she was learning to use it.

She was convicted Jan. 14 by a district court jury of criminally negligent homicide. Jurors rejected prosecution arguments that she was guilty of reckless manslaughter, a felony that can carry a 10-year prison term.

A presentence probation report said that if Miss Longet were sentenced to any consecutive days in jail, she planned to send her three children by Williams to live with him in California temporarily. The couple was divorced in 1975.

The children, Noelle, 13, Christian, 11, and Bobby, 7, lived with Miss Longet and Sabich at his $250,000 mountainside chalet.

Secret Service protection received by Carter child

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Amy Carter tends to her studies in a fourth-grade classroom in Washington, Secret Service agents wait outside, trying to be inconspicuous. As Susan Ford scurries to classes at the University of Kansas, Secret Service agents trail her.

They are just two of the increasing number of individuals Congress has ordered the Secret Service to protect.

Amy, 9-year-old daughter of President Carter, gets protection due the immediate family of the president.

Susan, 19, daughter of former President Gerald Ford, gets protection for up to six months because of a special law passed by Congress this year.

For fiscal 1977, the Secret Service estimated it needs 3,667 employees, 1,529 of them special agents, and a budget of $110 million.

That's the outlay for all the agency's work: suppressing counterfeiting, investigating check and bond forgeries, protecting individuals, buildings and grounds and safeguarding government securities. All the activities are on the upswing.

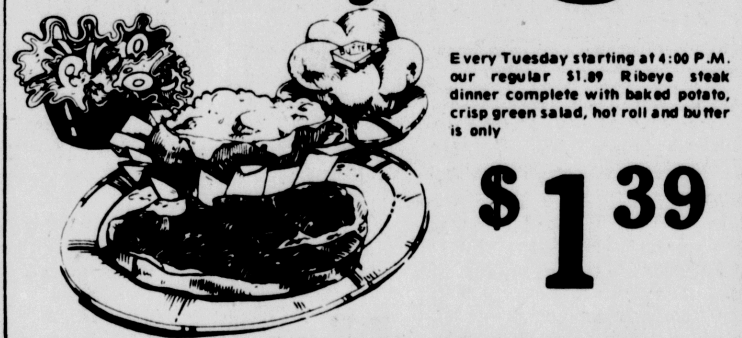

Currently, the Secret Service protects two dozen or more individuals. The number varies. It includes certain U.S. officials and their immediate families, visiting heads of state and, "at the direction of the President," other foreign visitors and official U.S. representatives on special missions abroad.

In a presidential election year it includes major national candidates unless protection is declined. It includes wives of such candidates for 60 days before the general election.

The Secret Service doesn't want to tip its hand as to who is getting protection or when, where and especially how a subject is guarded.

Bruins ruin Volunteers

Philadelphia opens gap stunning Denver, 107-101

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"You can't play for three quarters and expect to win against good teams," says Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue. So his 76ers went out and played for four quarters — and beat a very good team.

The 76ers, who have won 11 of their last 14 games and opened a 7½-game lead in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division, invaded Denver's McNichols Arena Sunday and that they plan to return in March. Eighth-ranked UCLA put on a devastating shooting display in snapping No. 7 Tennessee's 12-game winning streak 103-89 before a national television audience. The next important collegiate basketball games to be played in the Omni are the NCAA semifinals late in March, and the 16-2 Bruins appear to be a solid bet to be involved.

The Bruins were paced by sophomore guard Roy Hamilton's 30 points and forward Marques Johnson's 24, including several spectacular slam dunks.

Tennessee, 14-3, trailed throughout and rallied just once when Ernie Grunfeld's three-point play with just under 17 minutes left narrowed UCLA's lead to 56-52. Bernard King had 31 points for Tennessee and Grunfeld 23 before fouling out with 5:14 remaining.

While top-ranked San Francisco survived a scare by Santa Clara before subduing the Broncos 71-70 Saturday night for the second time last week, several other members of The Associated Press Top 20 were not so lucky. The other four members of the top five all lost, although No. 5 Nevada-Las Vegas' 104-77 defeat by Athletes in Action was only an exhibition game.

No. 2 Michigan was upset by lowly (5-13) Northwestern 99-87. No. 3 Alabama lost a key Southeastern Conference battle at home to No. 6 Kentucky 87-85, and fourth-ranked North Carolina ended an 0-2 week with an Atlantic Coast Conference loss to No. 19 Clemson 93-73.

In other games involving the Top 20, No. 9 Marquette romped over DePaul 85-64; 10th-rated Wake Forest topped Appalachian State 83-73; No. 11 Louisville took Rhode Island 105-87; 12th-ranked Cincinnati beat Duquesne 83-65; Minnesota, No. 13, beat Big Ten Conference rival Ohio State 77-67; 15th-rated Arkansas defeated Baylor 68-59; No. 16 Arizona stopped Colorado State 77-72. 18th-ranked Purdue edged Illinois 66-63, and No. 20 Memphis State outshot Dayton 81-67.

No. 14 Providence was idle and No. 17 Syracuse's game against La Salle was postponed because of heavy snow. Several other college games also were postponed throughout the storm-plagued East and Midwest.

Northwestern Coach Tex Winter called the victory over Michigan "the sweetest win I've ever had in basketball."

Billy McKinney led the upset with 29 points.

Kentucky edged Alabama as Jack

Givens hit two fouls shots for an 87-83 lead and the Wildcats withstood Keith McCord's basket in the closing seconds for the Crimson Tide.

North Carolina was embarrassed by

Athletes in Action's victory over

Nevada-Las Vegas was AIA's second triumph over a highly ranked NCAA team this year. Earlier, AIA beat top-rated San Francisco.

Cincinnati forced 21 Duquesne turnovers in its triumph, while Minnesota kept pace in the Big Ten with its victory over Ohio State behind Mike Thompson's 31 points.

Arkansas remained unbeaten in the Southwest Conference and raised its over-all record to 16-1 as Marvin Delph and Sidney Moncrief scored 22 points apiece.

Phil Harris' 30 points and 15 rebounds paced Arizona over Colorado State. Purdue nipped Illinois primarily because of Walter Jordan's 17 points, and John Washington led Memphis State over Dayton with 20 points and 11 rebounds.

Other major games included George Washington's shocking 86-76 victory over Maryland. Notre Dame's 93-71 triumph over Fordham, and Holy Cross' 78-59 victory over Seton Hall that gave the Crusaders their second Madison Square Garden Classic title in three years.

Wagner named Reds' GM

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Dick Wagner has been named General Manager of the Cincinnati Reds, it was announced Saturday by Bob Howsam, President of the team.

Wagner has been a part of the Reds' organization since February, 1967, and has been Executive Vice President for the past year, a title he will retain in addition to that of General Manager.

"It gives me pleasure and satisfaction to make this announcement," said Howsam. "Dick and I have worked together for more than a dozen years and I have great respect for his ability."

"This move reflects the steadily increasing duties and responsibilities that Dick has undertaken for the company in recent years."

"He will be in charge of our day-to-day operations and have increased involvement in the long-range planning of the company, relating to activities both on and off the playing field," Howsam added. "Dick's business knowledge has been and will continue to be a vital factor in the success of the Reds."

"I appreciate the confidence shown in me by Bob Howsam and look forward to the added responsibilities," said Wagner. "Cincinnati Reds' fans are the very best and all of us in the organization are dedicated to providing a continued quality operation, both on and off the field, for these fans."

"The challenges facing sports today are severe, but we have an ownership and a staff equal to these challenges," Wagner added.

Wagner got his start in baseball in 1947 as general manager of the Thomasville, Ga. team. He had later management positions with minor league baseball teams in Flint, Mich.; Miami, Fla.; San Antonio, Tex.; Hutchinson, Kan.; and Lincoln, Neb. He was named Minor League Executive of the Year by The Sporting News for his work at Lincoln in 1957.

In addition to his baseball experience, Wagner has been an executive with Ice Capades in Hollywood, Calif.; general manager of a radio station in Salina, Kan.; general manager of the Forum in Los Angeles; and manager of the Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln.

He was Director of Promotion and Sales for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1965 and 1966. He joined the Reds in 1967 as Assistant to the Executive Vice President and was later named Assistant to the President; Vice President, Administrative; and Executive Vice President.

Willie Mays hit .307 in 24 All-Star games. Three of his 23 hits were home runs.

Szymanski new Colts head

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dick Szymanski, the new general manager of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, is full of surprises.

In accepting the job Wednesday — after having served 22 years as a player, coach, scout and front office employee — Szymanski surprisingly said it was not a challenge.

"I'm not going to say it's a challenge," Szymanski said at a news conference. "Life is a challenge. This is pleasure."

Teams ready for Milan cycle race

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Eighteen two-man teams will start in the rich Milan six-day cycling race, scheduled for Feb. 12-18, organizers announced today.

The Belgian duo of Freddy Maertens and Marc Demeyer; the Italian-Dutch team of Francesco Moser and Rene Pijnen; and Italian veteran Felice Gimondi paired with Belgium's Rick Van

And, players' agents may be in for a surprise, too, when they encounter the former center and linebacker across the negotiating table.

"Agents are easy to deal with," Szymanski said. "I can let my hair down with them. If they want to yell, I can yell, too."

"But with a player, you have to be low key. If they tell you they're the best at their position in the NFL, you don't want them to lose that feeling. If they think like losers, you'll have a losing team."

Linden are rated as the teams to beat in the marathon.

Maertens is the defending world open road champion. His close rival, Moser, is the world pursuit champion and winner of the 1976 Milan six-day race.

Belgian star Eddy Merckx will not compete.

Washington won its eighth in a row as Phil Chenier scored 26 points, Elvin Hayes 24 and rookie Mitch Kupchak 22. The Bullets took a 57-41 halftime lead and coasted to their 14th victory in the last 16 games.

Lakers 101, Jazz 99

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 13 of his 27 points in the fourth quarter, rallying the Lakers to their 19th straight home court victory. Pete Maravich scored 29 for the Jazz, which suffered its 10th consecutive loss on the road.

Trail Blazers 99, Suns 91
Portland, playing without star center Bill Walton, who was injured, got balanced scoring, led by Maurice Lucas' 21 points, in winning its 25th home game at home against only one loss. Phoenix' Paul Westphal led all scorers with 24 points.

Olympic champs to compete in track meet

NEW YORK (AP)—Olympic champions Hasely Crawford of Trinidad and Don Quarrie of Jamaica will head a star-studded field in the 50-meter dash at the U.S. Olympic Invitational Track Meet Feb. 12 at Madison Square Garden. It was announced today.

Others in the field will include Harvey Gance, fourth in the Olympic 100-meter in which Crawford and Quarrie finished one-two, respectively; Steve Riddick, unbeaten in six races this season; swift teen-ager Houston McTear of Santa Monica City College, and Dr. Delano Meriwether, Olympian Ed Preston and Tony Easley, also of Auburn.

Minnesota, Thompson demoralize Buckeyes

By BRENT KALLESTAD
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—"The story of the game was Michael Thompson," sighed Ohio State Coach Eldon Miller, matter-of-factly.

Miller, a first-year coach in the Big Ten, had just finished watching an awesome offensive performance by the 6-foot-10 Thompson that sparked Minnesota to a 77-67 victory over his Buckeyes Saturday night.

The junior center exploded for nine of his game-high 31 points in a span of two minutes and 28 seconds late in the contest that demoralized Ohio State's upset bid.

Thompson hit a turn-around jumper from the baseline, a slam dunk and free throw, short jump shot and reverse lay-in as Minnesota stretched a 57-56 advantage with 5:28 left into a 66-57 lead with three minutes left in the game.

"Coach Dutcher has been on me to start looking for the shots," explained Thompson, the league's leading scorer with a 24.7 average. "It's important, though, to be sure you've got a good shot."

The fluid Thompson, who has taken only an average of 15 shots a game this season, is hitting 61 per cent of his attempts.

"The thing we've got to be careful about is that we don't go to Mike so much that the rest of the guys quit trying to score," said Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher. "We can't simplify their defenses for them."

Ray Williams added 21 points for Minnesota, now 15-1 overall and 6-1 in the league. The Gophers are in a virtual first-place tie with Michigan and Purdue in the Big Ten. Michigan is 8-1 and Purdue 7-1.

Ohio State, which slipped to 2-6 in the conference and 7-10 overall, was led by junior forward Terry Burris, who scored 15 points and grabbed nine rebounds.

"We played well, very well, at times," said Miller. "We had played our worst game of the season Thursday night so I was happy to see us come back so well."

Ohio State also played without freshman guard Kelvin Ransey, who leads the team in scoring with a 13.7 average. Ransey had the flu and did not dress. Miller said he expects Ransey will be back for Saturday's game at Michigan.

Stabler wins Hickok award

NEW YORK (AP) — Football player Ken Stabler has made the biggest catch of his career — the bejeweled Hickok belt.

The brilliant quarterback who led the Oakland Raiders to the Super Bowl championship earlier this month was named the 1976 Hickok Professional Athlete of the Year Monday.

Stabler's personal victory was a lot tougher than the Raiders' 32-14 rout of the Minnesota Vikings in Super Bowl XI on Jan. 9 in Pasadena, Calif. This year's Hickok voting by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters was one of the most wide-open in the 27-year history of the prestigious award.

The 32-year-old Stabler, the first Hickok recipient who failed to win any of the 12 monthly competitions, received 31 first-place votes and 135 points. It gave him a sevenpoint margin over Joe Morgan, the second baseman of the world champion Cincinnati Reds, Morgan, who also failed to win a monthly competition, received 28 first-place votes and 128 points.

Stabler led the Raiders to a 13-1 regular-season record as the top passer in the National Football League. The bearded southpaw quarterback completed 194 passes in 291 attempts for a 66.7 percentage, 2,737 yards and 27 touchdowns. He then guided Oakland to playoff victories over New England and Pittsburgh before the rousing Super Bowl triumph.

Tennis star Chris Evert became the highest-placed woman in Hickok history, receiving 24 first-place votes and 108½ points while golfer Judy Rankin got one first-place vote worth five points. The only other two women ever to get Hickok votes were the late Babe Didrikson Zaharias, a golfer, who got a first-place vote and 12 points in 1950, and tennis player Billie Jean King, who got one point in 1974.

Rookie pitcher Mark Fidrych finished fourth with 15 first place ballots and 92 points; Jimmy Connors, the Wimbledon and U.S. Open tennis champion, was next with 14 and 72½ and running back O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills was sixth with nine and 69.

Rounding out the top 10 were catcher Johnny Bench of Cincinnati, pitcher Randy Jones of San Diego, quarterback Bert Jones of Baltimore and U.S. Open golf champion Jerry Pate.

A record total of 24 athletes received first-place votes, and a total of 49 received points. Stabler will receive the Hickok Belt, valued at upwards of $20,000, at the 42nd annual dinner of the Touchdown Club of Washington next Saturday night in the nation's capital.

Majors named coach of year

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Majors, who coached the Pitt Panthers to the top of the college football world, has been honored by his colleagues for the achievement.

The 2,600 members of the American Football Coaches Association named Majors the Coach of the Year for Division I schools Thursday, making his father a proud man.

"I just can't express how I feel about his getting this award," said 63-year-old Shirley Majors, who coaches at the University of the South at Seawane, Tenn. "The biggest change I've experienced in football over the years is that Johnny used to be known as my son but now I'm known as his father."

The junior Majors guided Pitt to its first national championship in 39 years before accepting the task of trying to restore his alma mater, the University of Tennessee, to a college football power.

Jim Dennison of the University of Akron was named Coach of the Year in the College Division. He and Majors were honored at a banquet Thursday night.

Both won out over eight other district winners, with Majors capturing University Division honors by a landslide.

season and almost certainly the brightest of the young stars who are replacing the more established names and claiming the rich tour for their own.

He's finished fourth-first-first in his last three starts, has played those three events 42 strokes below par and has set scoring records in both his victories — in the Bing Crosby a week ago and in Sunday's San Diego Open.

While his heroics have drawn the inevitable comparisons with Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller and others — Watson, intelligent, friendly, a growing favorite with the galleries and a golfing Tom Sawyer — redhaired and freckle-faced — isn't yet ready to rank himself with the game's greats.

"I have to win many more titles before I can be considered," he said after a solid three-under-par 69 had staked him to a five-stroke victory in the San Diego Open. He played the Torrey Pines Golf Club in 269 for the week, 19 under par.

He opened the bright, sunny day with a two-stroke lead, built it to four at the turn, engineered a two-stroke swing on the 10th hole and cruised in from there.

Watson really didn't have a lot of pressure after moving into sole possession of the top spot in the third round. The last round was a front-running laughter that produced a $36,000 check, pushed him into the year's leading money-winning position with $86,700, made him only the third man to win his way into the World Series of Golf and enabled him to break the tournament scoring record for the second consecutive week.

John Schroeder, with a closing 67, and Larry Nelson, 69, tied for second five shots back at 274. Neither ever really threatened.

Australian rookie Bob Shearer, the only man who had a shot at Watson, slipped to a 73 and tied for fourth with Jerry McGee at 275. McGee had a last-round 68.

Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Forcing Food Down with Water

Even when I eat moist food, every once in awhile I've got to force the food down with large quantities of water. The food seems to get stuck in my throat. Can a growth be the cause of this situation? — Mr. G.E.W., Miss.

Dear Mr. W.:
No Medical column or magazine article can be a substitute for the valuable relationship between a patient and his doctor.

Any advice I would give you about this would further exaggerate the fears that seem to be keeping you from seeking professional advice.

When I point out the possibilities to be considered in your case I'm sure you will understand the point I am making.

Yes, a tumor, benign or cancerous, can cause an obstruction in the esophagus that would make it difficult to swallow food. Now that would be a terrifying thought. Yet there are other less important possibilities. A small pouch, or diverticulum, can produce the same symptoms.

Spasm of the muscular wall of the esophagus, birth abnormalities, enlargement of the heart, tumors of the lung, a foreign body or psychological disturbances may cause identical symptoms.

Hiatus hernia, and a condition known as "achalasia," could also be responsible.

You know, of course, that I am not suggesting that you have any of these problems. But I am deliberately using this method to show how wrong it is to attempt to guess at a diagnosis.

There may also be other relatively unimportant reasons for your complaint. Medical consultation, followed by X-ray studies and blood studies, can easily locate your problem. This is a much more sensible approach to a problem that needs to be clarified.

I have a painful spur on the heel. Does this mean that it is a forerunner of arthritis of the joints? — Mr. B.D., Mich.

Dear Mr. D.:

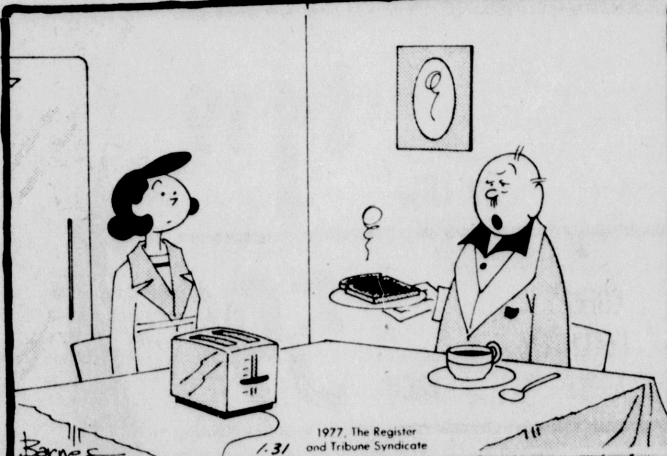

Spurs are not considered to be arthritic in nature. They are deposits of calcium in the tendons and muscles of the heel. They are frequently found among people who are subject to repeated injuries. Athletes and professional dancers are prone to these painful spurs.

Relief from pain can be obtained by protecting the heel with a foam rubber sponge. Cortisone can be effective in some cases. Surgery, in selected instances, is very helpful, too.

Child abusers can find help

The National Committee for the Prevention Of Child Abuse tells us that child abuse is now epidemic not only in the United States, but throughout the world. Last year, approximately one million American children were abused, and two thousand died painful deaths from beatings, burns, immersion in scalding water, etc.

Neglect (failure to provide a child with the basic necessities of life: food, clothing, shelter or medical care) is also child abuse. So is using a child for sexual gratification.

Child abuse can leave permanent physical scars—a crippled limb, impaired vision, a hearing loss and even brain damage. It causes antisocial behavior, failure in school, juvenile delinquency and emotional problems.

Parents who abuse their children need the kind of help that is now available though Parents Anonymous. It was founded by parents who had abused their children and had the courage to organize and seek solutions to their problem. They are headquartered at 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, Calif. 90278.

There are now 450 chapters in more than 300 cities. You can reach them toll free. In California dial 1-800-352-0386. Outside California, dial 1-800-421-1353.

Some questions:

Do you sometimes physically hurt your child because you're angry with yourself?

Were you mistreated as a child and now find yourself repeating your past?

Do you feel inadequate as a parent? Depressed? Unable to cope?

After punishing your child severely are you heartsick, ashamed and disgusted with yourself to the point of prayers and tears?

Have you ever injured your child, and then lied about it? ("He fell down the stairs," or "out of bed"?)

If you can see yourself in any of the above situations, don't be ashamed. You are not alone. Call P.A.

Here are some questions and answers that might be helpful:

Who may report a case of child abuse? Anybody can.

Do I have any legal protection when I report a suspected case of child abuse? Yes. Persons who report in good faith are granted immunity from civil and criminal court action, even if the report proves to be erroneous.

How sure must I be before I report? There is no rule. If there is serious doubt, resolve the doubt in favor of the child, and report.

Must I identify myself when I report? No, but it would be better if you did.

Is hitting "child abuse"? It depends on the age of the child, what part of body is hit, what was used to inflict the punishment and how serious the injuries are.

Do abusive parents hate their children? No. Most parents love their children, but in time of anger, they strike out at whoever is closest.

Do abusive parents ever learn to cope with their problems, and can the children be safely returned home? Yes. If parents receive the right kind of support and treatment, they can learn to handle their anger, and their children can be safely in their care.

Does jailing abusive parents help solve the problem? No. It only satisfies society's need for retribution and protects the child only temporarily. Imprisonment does not provide treatment and counseling, which is what the abusive parents desperately needs.

There are more than a dozen government, private, volunteer and specialized programs dealing with the prevention and treatment of child abuse and neglect. Parents Anonymous is a good place to start if one wants to know more about the project.

If you think you need help, call P.A. now. If you suspect that a child you know is being abused, please, please report it. All reports will be strictly confidential, and your name will be withheld.

Children should be seen-not hurt.

Weather, gas shortage require area school, industry closings

Extreme weather conditions, coupled with a critical shortage of natural gas supplies, continued to force closings of area schools, industries and businesses.

Classes in the Washington C.H. and Miami Trace school districts remained closed today. The closings were announced Saturday.

Guy M. Foster, superintendent of the Miami Trace School District, said "without question" county schools will remain closed Tuesday.

The Fayette County Board of Education was scheduled to meet at 2 p.m. today to determine the extent of the closure in light of the snow-clogged roads and the natural gas situation.

Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent of the Washington C.H. School District, said the city board of education will determine the immediate future of school operations at a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Nestor said if the board decides to postpone classes again Tuesday, it will be announced over WCHO-FM Radio tonight and before 7 a.m. Tuesday on WCHO-AM. He requests students not to call school administrators for information.

The natural gas situation continues to hamper area businesses.

The Dayton Power and Light Co. announced today there are 48 days remaining until March 20 and at the present consumption rate the company's natural gas supply will last 42 days. The company said Sunday temperatures were 21 degrees below normal.

Coyt A. Stookey, official Washington C.H. weather observer, said the temperature plunged to two degrees below zero overnight.

The Armco Steel Corp. Metal Products Division plant in Washington

C.H., which was closed Monday, is scheduled to resume normal operations Tuesday.

The Conchemco, Inc. mobile home plant in Sabina and the Colonial Stair and Woodworking Co. in Jeffersonville were closed Monday.

Offices in the Fayette County Courthouse were also closed Monday.

The Fayette County Agricultural Society (county fair board) announced today that the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds will be closed at least through Feb. 12 in an effort to conserve natural gas. Eddie Kirk, county fair board president, said all activities scheduled through Feb. 12 have been cancelled.

John Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent, said the Fayette County Pork Producers Association banquet and the banquet of the corn and soybean club have been postponed. Both banquets were scheduled to be held in the Mahan Building.

The coldest January on record for most parts of Ohio is ending much as it began—with bitter cold temperatures.

Temperatures fell below zero overnight in northern and central counties and reached only the single figures along the Ohio River.

Highs today were to reach the teens in most areas, climbing into the upper teens and mid 20s Tuesday. Lows tonight will again range from zero to 10 above under clear skies.

The storm area in eastern Canada was continuing to cause windy conditions with some blowing and drifting snow around the state. The coldest air continues eastward and moderating temperatures will continue into mid-week.

As this January ends, it will easily exceed the coldest January on record for much of the state. For Cleveland, the previous coldest January on record averaged 15 degrees in 1918. This month's will average near 11 degrees.

WEDNESDAY THROUGH FRIDAY

Cold through the period. Fair Wednesday. A chance of snow Thursday and mainly in the northeast on Friday. Highs in the 20s Wednesday, in the upper 20s to low 30s Thursday and in the 20s again Friday. Lows around 10 Wednesday morning and in the teens Thursday and Friday.

Kentucky waiter held in murder

ALEXANDRIA, Ky. (AP) — A waiter at a plush northern Kentucky supper club was tentatively scheduled for arraignment Friday for the strangulation and dismemberment of his wife.

Kevin Adrian Murtaugh, 25, Fort Mitchell, Ky., was held at the Campbell County Jail in lieu of $250,000 bond. He was charged with murder in the death Diane Murtaugh, 22.

Campbell County police said the charge does not carry the death penalty if convicted. Police said the maximum penalty on the charge is life imprisonment in Kentucky.

Police check needy family

Washington C.H. police officers referred a case of a needy family to the child welfare division of the Fayette County Welfare Department.

Police officers said they were advised by a neighbor that children living at 713 Gregg St. were without food and the residence had no water.

Washington C.H. police officers are investigating a burglary at Milstead Tire Sales, Inc., 115 W. Market St.

The burglary reportedly occurred on Saturday, but no police report could be obtained at press time.

Firemen check house blaze

Washington C.H. firemen responded to a house fire at 1365 Dayton Ave. Sunday morning.

Residue buildup inside a metal fireplace flue ignited at the Leonard Bach residence and did light to moderate smoke damage.

Firemen arrived on the scene at 10:55 a.m. and were able to contain the fire to the flue. A smoke ejector was used to clear the house.

Firemen James Sever suffered a back injury at the fire scene when he slipped on ice.

Firemen also responded to a gas-leak report Sunday.

A high level reading on the fire department's "explosive meter" prompted firemen to shut-off a gas meter to the Donald Dunn residence, 903 S. Fayette St., at 8:35 p.m. until repairs could be completed.
